PREFACE.

The collection of books and manuscripts described in this catalogue illustrates the interest taken by the late Mr. Levi Z. Leiter in American history and in rare and early printed books.

It is not often that a love for books finds a place in the life of an active business man, and still more rarely that a discriminating taste and exact bibliographical knowledge, such as Mr. Leiter displayed in bringing together this remarkably fine collection of rarities, accompany the talents which made him one of the preëminently successful business men of America. His correspondence with such scholars and bibliophiles as Dr. W. F. Poole, Rufus Blanchard, Henry Stevens, and Joseph Sabin indicates that his interest was continuous.

A perusal of the titles of the works contained in this library will indicate that it is the collection of a book-lover, that it consists of a well-balanced selection of works relating to America, and that it includes an exceptional number of rare works beyond the reach of the ordinary collector.

Among the works in geography, voyages, and travel are to be found Peter Martyr's First three decades of the new world, 1516, and the two English editions of 1612 and 1625, Hakluyt, Purchas, Thévenot, and Wytfliet.

New England is represented in the works of the Mathers, Eliot, Backus, Morton, Neal, Norton, Cotton, Hubbard, Bishope, Burrough, Byfield, Hutchinson, Josselyn, Letchford, Winthrop, and others of equal importance.

The works on New York include the rare Dutch work of Van der Donck, Horsmanden's Journal of the negro plot . . . burning the city of New York, 1744, and the rare copy of the Charter of the city of New York, printed by Peter Zenger in 1735.

Among the works relating to Pennsylvania are Penn's Letters of 1683 and 1688, his Further account of the Province, 1685, Budd's

Good order established, 1685 (the second issue of William Bradford's press), Thomas's Historical and geographical account, 1698. The collection of tracts relating to the province should also be noted.

New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia, and Florida are also represented by such writings as Acrelius, The Acts of Thomas Bray, 1700, Hamor, Keith, Beverly, Stith, Bonoeil, Williams, Jefferson's Notes (his own copy with marginal notes), Brief description of Carolina, 1666, Wilson's Account of Carolina, 1682, Carolina, 1682 (attributed to Thomas Ash), Oglethorpe's South Carolina and Georgia, 1732, Tailfer's Colony of Georgia, 1741, and Romans's East and West Florida, 1775.

Among the early works of Spanish and Portuguese writers are Voyages and discoveries in South America, 1698, A Relation of the invasion and conquest of Florida by the Spaniards, 1686, B. de las Casas and Zaráte.

This collection contains some of the earliest and most important books relating to the vast region of New France and Canada, such as Sagard-Théodat, Champlain, Lescarbot, Charlevoix, Hennepin, Lahontan, and Vaughan.

The literature of the French and Indian war and the American Revolution is fully represented. It would be well to note such works as the Historical account of the Bouquet expedition by Wm. Smith, Pouchot's Mémoires, the compilation by Moreau, containing Washington's Journal and Braddock's Letters, Parkman's works, a complete set of the Remembrancer, edited by John Almon, Phillips's Colonial and continental paper money, The Clinton and Cornwallis controversy, Simcoe's Journal, and the Court-Martial proceedings of André, Arnold, Lee, St. Clair, and Schuyler.

Among the other important works may be mentioned Audubon's Birds of America, the first edition of the Book of Mormon, the Confession of Faith, New London, 1710 (the first book printed in Connecticut). There are also many state and town histories.

Another very important feature of this library is the collection of books, pamphlets, and newspapers relating to the Confederate states. It is one of the largest private collections in existence today, and is nearly as complete as that in the Library of Congress. Many of these works were destroyed during the war, and it would entail considerable time and expense to make such a collection today.

Some of the best specimens of the early American printers, such as the Bradfords, Franklin, Zenger, Jansen, and others, are contained in the collection.

Many of the books have been bound by Pratt, Bedford, Riviere, Tout, Matthews, and Zaehnsdorf, and display some of their best workmanship.

The arrangement of this catalogue is in two divisions, alphabetically by authors. Part One, Americana, includes all books relating to America, or books by American authors, the literature of the Confederacy, and the original papers of David Hartley, consisting of letters and documents relating to the negotiations of the Definitive Treaty of Peace between Great Britain and the United States, 1783.

Part Two is a collection of miscellaneous literature. It includes some of the rarest works of the English writers, such as the first four folio editions of Shakespeare's works, the first five editions of Izaak Walton's Compleat Angler, the first folio edition of Spenser's Faerie Queene, the works of the Water-Poet, John Taylor, and others of equal importance.

The titles of the rare books are given in full, and in most cases line for line, with full collations and bibliographical notes. The sizes are given according to the usual method, with the measurements in centimeters (in parentheses) following. The measurements are in all cases those of the leaves and not of the bindings. In the cases of maps, however, the measurements are given in inches.

The compiler gratefully acknowledges the assistance extended to him by his associates in the Library of Congress, and more especially that rendered by his friend and colleague, Mr. George Thomas Ritchie, who has aided in the reading of the proof and by many helpful suggestions throughout the course of the work.

Novanglus, and Massachusettensis; or, Political essays, published in the years 1774 and 1775, on the principal points of controversy, between Great Britain and her colonies. The former by John Adams, late President of the United States, the latter by Jonathan Sewall, then king's attorney general of the province of Massachusetts Bay. To which is added a number of letters, lately written by President Adams, to the Honourable William Tudor; some of which were never before published. Boston: Hews & Goss, 1819.

vii, [1], 9–312 pp., 8°. (23½ cm.) Half green morocco, top edges gilt, uncut. Portrait of Adams inserted.

"Over the signature Novanglus, a series of articles was published in the Boston Gazette by Mr. Adams between January and April, 1775, in answer to certain articles in the Tory interest which appeared in the Massachusetts Gazette and Boston Post-Boy over the signature Massachusettensis. Both series were afterwards re-published at different times in separate form, the Novanglus letters under the title: History of the dispute with America, from its origin in 1754. Until after the publication of the present collection it was supposed by Mr. Adams that the Massachusettensis papers were the work of Jonathan Sewall, but it is now well established that they were written by Daniel Leonard."

[Translation:]

John Rufus of Forli, Archbishop of Cosenza, apostolic legate to the reader, touching the new world. Accept these exquisite volumes concerning the New World, and learn, O reader! of the great treasures of the Ocean. The greatest gratitude is due to thee, pilot; thee who carriest unknown nations and birds to the New World. Great thanks are also due to our author, who shows all those kingdoms in their places. The Author. Reader, stop! read what is contained in this short work, inscribed to different princes, and to Pope Leo X. Here you will see many new things of the Ocean, great countries, vast seas; you will learn of hitherto unknown languages, and of golden ages, and of nude nations free from the corrupting influence of money; of the torrid zone, fertile in precious stones and gold,—respect the venerable antiquity.

Decades of the new world.

By the care and industry of the celebrated master Anthony of Nebris, these three decades of the historian and prothonotary, Peter Martyr, were printed in the office of Arnold William in the celebrated city, which is commonly called Alcala. Finished, November 9th, 1516.—Harrisse, H. Bib. Vet. Amer.

"The edition of the first decade of Peter Martyr, printed at Seville in 1511, had been published, as it seems, contrary to his wishes, and contained only the first nine books of the first decade (the portion which, on the recto of the forty-first leaf, bears the title of Occean. decadis libri Decimus, is only a short dissertation De superstionibus insularium solutum per se libellum). In 1508, he wrote for Mendoza de Tendilla, a genuine Lib. x., which completes the first decade in the edition before us, while the xth of the edition of 1511 is added to the ixth. We know that Pope Leo X was so charmed with Peter Martyr's Decade that he read it to his sister and to the cardinals "after supper, serena fronte, and to satiety, until late in the night," and are not surprised, therefore, to learn that this enlightened Pope instructed Bottrigari, his Embassador to the Court of Spain, to request the interesting annalist to continue his Occanics. It is in consequence of this request that the second decade was written, December 14th, 1514, and the third, partly in March, 1515, remitting the manuscript to the printer only on the 14th of October, 1516, owing to his wish to insert the news which had just been brought to him by one Roderick Colmenares." —*Harrissee. Ornithological Biography, or an account of the Habits of the Birds of the United States of America; accompanied by descriptions of the objects represented in the work entitled, "The Birds of America," and interspersed with delineations of American scenery and manners. By John James Audubon. . . . Edinburgh: Adam & Charles Black, 1831-'39.

5 vols., imp. 8°. (25½ cm.) Full dark red crushed levant morocco extra, gold tooling on back, three line fillet on sides, edges gilt, inside border, by F. Bedford.

Vols. 4, 5, have added to title: "together with an account of the digestive organs of many of the species, illustrated by engravings on wood."

The Birds were originally published in 87 parts, supposed to be of five plates each, making the actual total of 435 plates giving 1065 figures of birds, subsequently bound in four volumes. These folios had no text except the title-leaf of each volume. The plates were furnished without text to avoid the necessity of furnishing copies gratis to the public libraries of England, agreeable to the English laws of copyright. Owing to the destruction by fire (19th of July, 1845), of the stock and copper-plates, and ruinous effects of the war in the Southern States where most were sold, the work has become extremely rare. This copy is in perfect condition. It was purchased of Sotheran in the year 1880, and was known as the Hayes' set. Mr. B. F. Stevens, in a letter describing this copy, says: "I went to Sotheran's to see the Audubon's Birds and found it a very fine set evidently kept by a subscriber as it was received on publication—The Turkey has a fragment of margin, less than half an inch on the left side, but it is evident that the paper has never been cut, it is printed on paper a little smaller than the remainder of the book. To-day I have examined the copy in the British Museum which is a very fine one, the right hand margin of the Turkey is all right, but the left hand is taken in in the sewing and the plates following the Turkey are all inlaid instead of being on larger paper than the Turkey, as in the Hayes' set (Sotheran's)." It was bound in six volumes instead of four, so that there would be a uniformity in size, and an extra title page added to each volume.

The text of this edition was published separately. "In this work Audubon with scientific exactness, though in simple and at times naïve language, recounts the history of the capture of the specimens which were the models of his pictures. He gives also in some of the chapters most entertaining descriptions on the many curious episodes of his wandering life on the then frontiers of civilization, thus preserving and handing down to us the memories of the pioneers and backwoodsmen of North America, together with the modes and customs which have passed away with them."

"A noble copy, which is probably rendered UNIQUE by a happy blunder of the original binder. It has the General Title in duplicate, one at the beginning of the volume, and the other at the end of the Old Testament. Mr. Henry Stevens, of whom this copy was purchased by Mr. Brinley in 1871, explains the presence of the second title, in this way: "Sheet Ppppp, the end of the Old Testament, is bound up as originally printed: that is, Ppppp I is the end of the Old Testament, ending on the reverse; Ppppp 3 is a blank leaf; Ppppp 2 is the title to the Old and New Testaments, reverse blank; and Ppppp 4 is blank on the recto, and has the List of the Books on the verso. The cut-out of the two middle leaves of this sheet, then makes the blank leaf and the title at the front of the book. In this copy, these two leaves are in duplicate and as clean and fresh as they were in 1685." The leaf at the end, containing the rules, or "Catechism," which was noted as wanting in the Brinley Catalogue (see No. 790), has since been supplied.

The leaf measures 19½ x 15 cm. In the upper corner of the (first) title is the autograph of "Jo. Baily. Jan. 1, [16]8 $\frac{6}{7}$ N. E." (the Rev. John Baily, minister of Watertown, and assistant minister of the First Church, Boston, 1693–97). On the blank leaf preceding the title, is the fine autograph of "Grindall Rawson/His Indian Bible/Given him By his Father/1712." The writer, minister of Mendon, Mass., 1680–1715, was much engaged in the Indian work, and was able to preach to the Indians in their language. He translated for them Cotton's Milk for Babes and the Confession of Faith of 1680. He was a son of Secretary Edward Rawson, who gave him this Indian Bible.

The binding, executed under Mr. Stevens's direction is in the best style, in blue gros-grain levant morocco, sides filleted and paneled, blind and gold, with centre ornaments, the back paneled, broad inside borders of elegant design, on a lining of red levant morocco; enclosed in a dark green morocco box, lined with white velvet, gilt and lettered."

Collation: 609 printed leaves without page numbers, and 6 blank leaves, in the following order: 3 blank leaves, the title of the whole bible in Indian on 1 leaf verso blank, Genesis to Malachi in 425 leaves. The General Title 1 leaf verso blank, 1 blank leaf, the List of the Books on 1 leaf recto blank, the title of the New Testament in Indian on 1 leaf verso blank, Matthew to Revelation in 129 leaves, the metrical version of the psalms in 50 leaves, rules for Christian living on 1 leaf, and 2 blank leaves at the end. Signatures, besides the first 3 blank leaves and title, A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, X, Y, Z, Aa to Zz, Aaa to Zzz, Aaaa to Zzzz, Aaaaa to Ooooo, all in fours and Ppppp 1 for the old testament, 3 leaves (see Stevens's note above); A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, X, Y, Z, Aa, Bb, Cc, Dd, Ee, Ff, Gg, Hh, Ii, Kk, Ll, Mm, Nn, Oo, Pp, Qq, Rr, Ss, Tt, Uu, Xx, and Yy, all in fours, for the new testament and metrical psalms, besides the leaf of rules and 2 final blank leaves. Matthew begins on A2, and Revelation ends on Kk2, verso blank; the metrical psalms begin on Kk3, and end on the verso of Yy4. In the Massachusetts Indian language.

The book is printed in double columns, like the first edition, with references at the side and headings in Indian at the top of each column. A full page of text measures 6⅝ by 4¾ inches, including headings, catchwords, and references, which is an increase in width of one-eighth of an inch. At the beginning of each chapter is a summary in English, not in the first edition. These summaries increase the whole number of leaves to eleven more in the old testament and three more in the new testament, than there are in the edition of 1663–'61. The statement of Mr. Thomas, in his History of Printing in America, that "both editions had title pages in English and Indian," is undoubtedly wrong as far as this edition is concerned, for no copy has been found with an English title, nor is there any probability that one was ever printed. According to Dr. Trumbull, "In printing James I. 26, in the first and second editions of the New Testament, the words 'qut asookekodtam nehenwonche wuttah,' [but deceiveth his own heart,] were omitted. The omission was discovered before the issue of the second edition of the Old Testament, 1685.—and attention is directed to it, by an erratum, at the bottom of the page containing the names and numbers of the books,—facing the title page of the New Testament: 'James I. 26. Asuhkaue wenan, ogketash, qut asookekodtam etc.,—that is, 'After wenan [tongue,] read qut asookekodtam' &s." The above translation of the Indian title is from Dr. Trumbull's Origin and Early Progress of Indian Missions in New England.

In September, 1672, all the remaining copies of the first edition of the Indian bible were ordered by the Commissioners to be bound. It is probable that the edition was soon exhausted. Many copies were lost or destroyed in the Indian war of 1675–'76. As a new edition was much needed, Mr. Eliot began, about the year 1677, to revise the whole work. He also petitioned the Commissioners to reprint it. From the records it appears that it was resolved, at the meeting held in Plymouth, March 20, 1678, "In reference vnto the Reuerend Mr. Elliott's motion for reprinting the bible in the Indian Language; The Commissioners haueing had some Debate about that matter doe Judge it most expedient to Refer the determination thereof to the next meeting of the Commissioners." Accordingly, when they met again, in Boston, August 25, 1679, "Appeared, the Reverend Mr. John Eliot, and made a motion referring to the re-printing of the Bible." Concerning the extent of Mr. Eliot's labor on the new edition, Dr. Trumbull remarks: "In the revision he was greatly assisted by the Rev. John Cotton, of Plymouth, but it is not true that 'the second edition of the Indian Bible was,' as Cotton Mather asserts, 'wholly of Mr. Cotton's correction and amendment.' Eliot's correspondence with Boyle proves that he was himself actively engaged in the work, though he acknowledges his indebtedness to Mr. Cotton, who, he writes [July 7, 1688] 'has helped me much in the second edition.'" The Rev. Thomas Prince, in the manuscript catalogue of his New England Library, makes the following statement: "Ye Rev. Mr. John Cotton of Plimouth being well acqd wth ye Indn Langg was desd by ye Indn Comisnrs to correct mr Eliot's versn of 1663; took this method—while a good Reader in his study read ye Eng Bible aloud, Mr Cotton silently look'd along in ye same Place in ye Indn Bible: & whr He thot of Indn words wc He judg'd cd express ye sense better, There He substituted ym, & this 2d Editn is accordg to Mr Cotton's correction."[1] Mr. Eliot himself, in the Roxbury Church Records (Boston, 1881), p. 196, wrote: "When the Indians were hurried away to an Iland at half an hours warning, pore soules in terror y^{ei} left theire goods, books, bibles, only some few caryed y^{r} bibles, the rest were spoyled & lost. So y^{t} w^{n} the wares w^{r} finished, & y^{ei} returned to y^{r} places y^{ei} w^{r} greatly impov'ished, but y^{ei} especially bewailed y^{r} want of Bibles, y^{s} made me meditate upon a 2^{d} $imp^{r}ssion$ of o^{r} Bible, & accordingly tooke pains to revise the first edition. I also intreated m^{r} John Cotton to help in y^{t} work, he having obtained some ability so to doe. he read over the whole bible, & whatever doubts he had, he writ y^{m} downe in order, & gave y^{m} to me, to try y^{m} & file y^{m} over among o^{r} Indians. I obteined the favor to reprint the New $testam^{t}$ & psalmes, but I met wth much obstruction for reprinting the old $testam^{t}$, yet by prayre to God, Patience & intreatye, I at last obteined y^{t} also, praised be the Lord."

The desired authority having been obtained the printing of the new testament was at once begun. This was probably early in 1680. In the summer of the same year the two Labadists, Jasper Dankers and Peter Sluyter, visited Boston and Cambridge, on their return from New Netherland to Holland. The following extract of their journal for July 7th and 8th, 1680, is from the translation made by Mr. Henry C. Murphy: "The best of the ministers whom we have yet heard, is a very old man, named John Eliot, who has charge of the instruction of the Indians in the Christian religion. He has translated the Bible into their language. We had already made inquiries of the booksellers for a copy of it, but it was not to be obtained in Boston. They told us if one was to be had, it would be from Mr. Eliot. We determined to go on Monday to the village where he resided, and was the minister, called Roxbury . . . 8th, Monday. We went accordingly, about eight o'clock in the morning, to Roxbury, which is three-quarters of an hour from the city. . . . On arriving at his house, he was not there, and we, therefore, went to look around the village, and the vicinity. We found it justly called Rocksbury, for it was very rocky, and had hills entirely of rocks. Returning to his house we spoke to him, and he received us politely. Although he could speak neither Dutch nor French, and we spoke but little English, and were unable to express ourselves in it always, we managed, by means of Latin and English, to understand each other. He was seventy-seven years old, and had been forty-eight years in these parts. He had learned very well the language of the Indians, who lived about there. We asked him for an Indian Bible. He said in the late Indian war, all the Bibles and Testaments were carried away, and burnt or destroyed, so that he had not been able to save any for himself; but a new edition was in press, which he hoped would be much better than the first one, though that was not to be despised. We inquired whether any part of the old or new edition could be obtained by purchase, and whether there was any grammar of that language in English. Thereupon he went and brought us the Old Testament, and also the New Testament, made up with some sheets of the new edition, so that we had the Old and New Testament complete. He also brought us two or three small specimens of the grammar. We asked him what we should pay him for them; but he desired nothing."

On November 4th, 1680, Eliot wrote to the Hon. Robert Boyle: "Our praying Indians, both in the islands, and on the main, are, considered together, numerous; thousands of souls, of whom some true believers, some learners, and some are still infants, and all of them beg, cry, entreat for bibles, having already enjoyed that blessing, but now are in great want. . . . We are at the 19th chap. of the Acts; and when we have impressed the new testament, our commissioners approve of my preparing and impressing also the old." The new testament was finished at the press in the autumn or winter of 1681, and closely followed by the impression of the metrical psalms, which were completed in 1682. Some copies of the book may then have been bound for immediate use, because, according to Mr. Eliot's letter written two years before, the Indians were begging, crying, and entreating for bibles, of which they were in "great want." Dr. Trumbull, however, supposes that "few copies, if any," were "made up separately."

The printing of the old testament was begun in 1682, after the metrical psalms had been finished. On the 15th of March, 1682–3, Mr. Eliot wrote to Boyle: "The great work, that I travel about, is, the printing of the old testament, that they may have the whole bible. They have had the whole, in the first impression, and some of the old they still have, and know the worth and use of it; and therefore they are importunately desirous of the whole. I desire to see it done before I die, and I am so deep in years that I cannot expect to live long: besides, we have but one man (viz. the Indian printer) that is able to compose the sheets, and correct the press, with understanding. For such reasons, so soon as I received the sum of near 40l. for the bible work, I presently set the work on foot; and one tenth part, or near is done: we are in Leviticus. I have added some part of my salary to keep up the work, and many more things I might add, as reasons of my urgency in this matter." Three months later, on the 21st of June, 1683, he wrote again: "Your hungry alumns do still cry unto your honour for the milk of the word in the whole book of God, and for the bread of life, which they have fed upon in the whole bible, and are very thankful for what they have, and importunately desirous to enjoy the whole book of God. . . . My age makes me importunate. I shall depart joyfully, may I but leave the bible among them, for it is the word of life; and there be some godly souls among them, that live thereby. The work is under great incumberments and discouragements." On the 27th of November, 1683, in another letter to Boyle, he wrote: "Although my hasty venturing to begin the impression of the old testament before I had your honour's (fiat) may have moved (as some intimate) some disgust, yet I see that your love, bounty and charity, doth still breath out encouragement unto the work, by supplies of 460l. unto the work, for which I do return my humble thankfulness to your honour, and take boldness to intreat favour for two requests. First, I pray, that you would please to accept an apology for my haste. I am deep in years, and sundry say, if I do not procure it printed while I live, it is not within the prospect of human reason, whether ever, or when, or how, it may be accomplished . . . My second humble request is, that you would please to draw a curtain of love over all my failures, because love will cover a multitude of transgressions. The work goeth on now, with more comfort, though we have had many impediments, partly by sickness of the workmen, for it is a very sickly and mortal time with us, as also the rigour of the winter doth now obstruct us. The work goeth on, I praise God; the sabbath is sanctified in many places, and they have still fragments of their old bibles, which they make constant use of." The progress of the work is related in another letter to Boyle, dated April 22, 1684: "The last gift of 400l. for the reimpression of the Indian bible doth set a diadem of beauty upon all your former acts of pious charity, and commandeth us to return unto your honours all thankful acknowledgments, according to our abilities. It pleased the worshipful Mr. Stoughton, to give me an intimation, that your honours desired to know the particular present estate of the praying Indians; as also, when Moses's pentateuch is printed, to have some copies sent over, to evidence the real and good progress of the work . . . As for the sending any numbers of Moses's Pentateuch, I beseech your honours to spare us in that; because so many as we send, so many bibles are maimed, and made incomplete, because they want the five books of Moses. We present your honours with one book, so far as we have gone in the work, and humbly beseech, that it may be acceptable, until the whole be finished; and then the whole impression (which is two thousand) is at your honours command. Our slow progress needeth an apology. We have been much hindered by the sickness this year. Our workmen have been all sick, and we have but few hands, one Englishman, and a boy, and one Indian; and many interruptions and diversions do befal us; and we could do but little this very hard winter."

The old testament appears to have been completed in the autumn of 1685. A brief address was then prepared, "To the Honourable Robert Boyle Esq: Governour, And to the Company, for the Propagation of the Gospel to the Indians in New-England, and Parts adjacent in America," dedicating to them "this second Edition of the Holy Bible" in the Indian language, "much corrected and amended." This dedication, dated "Boston Octob. 23. 1685," and signed by William Stoughton, Joseph Dudley, Peter Bulkley and Thomas Hinkley, was printed on one side of a single leaf, and inserted after the first title in the few presentation copies sent abroad. A contemporary reference to the bible is found in a letter from Samuel Sewall to Stephen Dummer, written from Boston, February 15th, 168$\frac{5}{6}$: "The best News that I can think to speak of from America, is, that Mr. John Eliot, through the good hand of God upon him, hath procured a second Edition of the Bible in the Indian Language; so that many Hundreds of them may read the Scriptures." In the summer of 1686, Mr. John Dunton, the London bookseller, made a visit to Mr. Eliot, an account of which he gave in his Life and Errors, as follows: "My next ramble was to Roxbury, in order to visit the Rev. Mr. Elliot, the great Apostle of the Indians. He was pleased to receive me with abundance of respect; and inquired very kindly after Dr. Annesley, my Father-in-law, and then broke out with a world of seeming satisfaction, 'Is my brother Annesley yet alive? Is he yet converting souls to God? Blessed be God for this information before I die.' He presented me with twelve Indian Bibles, and desired me to bring one of them over to Dr. Annesley; as also with twelve 'Speeches of converted Indians,' which himself had published." In a letter to Boyle, dated "Roxbury, August 29, 1686, in the third month of our overthrow," Mr. Eliot wrote: "Our Indian work yet liveth, praised be God; the bible is come forth, many hundreds bound up, and dispersed to the Indians, whose thankfulness I intimate and testify to your honour."

From the preceding extracts of Mr. Eliot's letters it appears that 2,000 copies were printed of this edition. Mr. Eliot acknowledged the receipt of 900l., in three separate payments, for defraying the cost of the work. One of the persons employed on this edition was the Indian called James Printer. He was educated at the Indian school in Cambridge, and had worked as an apprentice on the first edition. Mr. Eliot refers to him as the only man they had who was able to compose the sheets and correct the press with understanding. In 1709 his name appears as joint printer with B. Green of Mayhew's Indian translation of the psalter. About the year 1855, Mr. George Livermore had a few copies of the dedication leaf reprinted separately, nearly in fac-simile, for insertion in the ordinary copies of the bible. The dedication was also reprinted in O'Callaghan's American Bibles, p. 17.

Dr. John G. Shea has furnished the following note relating to the Indian bible: "The volume excited interest in Rome, and a brief of Pope Clement XI. to the archbishop of Saragossa, Aug. 31, 1709, written to excite him to prevent the introduction into Spanish America of a Bible recently translated into an American language by Protestants, evidently refers to this, although it is spoken of as printed in London."—*Eames, W. Book-plate of E. G. Asay.

"A defence of the author and the subject. It was first intended to publish this work in three volumes, with an appendix to each volume, &c. . . . But this plan was relinquished, and it was judged best to publish the whole in one volume, (p. 154.) This accounts for the three paginations; that the second and third begin with page 5 is perhaps, owing to title-pages, etc., being dropped."—Sabin.

"Edward Burrough was an early disciple of George Fox, who had 'great reasonings' with him in 1652, in which year he came forth in the work of the ministry. He visited London in 1654, and in 1661 had an interview with Charles II., which is graphically narrated in Fox's Journal, p. 325, fol. ed. It was on that occasion that Burrough obtained the royal mandamus ordering a stop to be put in Massachusetts to the proceedings against the Quakers. After a life of zeal and activity, 'dear E. B.,' as Fox calls him, died in 1662. It was a great grief and exercise to Friends to part with him."—E. B. O'Callaghan.

[Cadwalader, John], 1742-1786.

A reply to General Joseph Reed's Remarks, on a late publication in the Independent Gazetteer, with some observations on his address to the people of Pennsylvania. Philadelphia: Printed and sold by T. Bradford in Front-Street the Fourth door below the Coffee-house, MDCCLXXXIII.

54 pp., 8°. (19½ cm.) Polished calf. Two portraits of Cadwalader inserted. Signed: Brutus.

"By General John Cadwalader, though its real authorship has been attributed to Dr. B. Rush. The original edition of this and Reed's Remarks having been suppressed by one or other of the parties concerned, are two of the rarest pieces in Pennsylvania literature. The occasion of the dispute was the assertion by General Cadwalader, that in Dec., 1776, before the battle of Trenton, General Reed was so much depressed by the sad state of American affairs as to meditate withdrawing from the service. This assertion General Reed denies, and General Cadwalader defends, in very heated and bitter language. The dispute was renewed on the publication of the ninth volume of Bancroft's History."—Sabin.

"An exceptionally fine copy of the best edition of Champlain. It was obtained, a few years ago, from a private library in France, in which, apparently, it has rested undisturbed since it received its 17th century binding. The description and collation agree with Sabin's Dictionary, No. 11839, and Field's Indian Bibliography, No. 268, except in two particulars. The map has the Inscription: 'Faicte l'an 1632 par le sieur de Champlain,' and, its two sheets having been joined in one, it is inserted in its proper place, after p. 210 of the second part, and immediately before the 'Table povr cognoistre les lievx remarqvables en ceste Carte.' (It is usually found—when found at all—at the end of the volume, separated from its Table of Reference, by the 'Traité de la Marine' and specimens of the Indian languages.) The 'blank leaf' after page 210 (the 4th leaf of Qq.) has been removed or cut down to form a guard. The united sheets of the map measure 33½ x 20¾ inches, between the outer lines of the border. The impression is excellent; so are the impressions of the six copper-plates, pp. 245, 259, 265, 291, 299, 304. Signed "T. W., Boston, Aug. 25th, 1755." "This tract has reference to the defeat of the British (Colonial) forces under Col. George Washington in Ohio. The writer attributes the ill success to the commanding officer. He complains, too, that the Southern colonies did not comprehend the danger to which they were exposed by the union of the French and Indians. The defeat he calls 'a terrible evil.' New-England in general, and Massachusetts province in special, are the chief sources that may be relied on for a supply of effective men to carry into execution any future designs against the French."—Sabin.

Title, 1 l., text, 195 pp.; "A Reply to Mr. Williams' Answer," 144 pp., sm. 4°. (18½ x 14 cm.) Dark blue morocco, gilt back and edges, sides, three line fillet.

The second part of this volume, "A Reply to Mr. Williams' Answer to Mr. Cotton's Letter," has no connection with the first, which relates to toleration.

"About ten years before this Reply was written, at some time, it would seem, during his 'sorrowfull winter's flight,' Williams received from Cotton the Letter which was the immediate occasion of the discussion. In this Letter, which has been reprinted in the first volume of the Publications of the Narragansett Club, Cotton sought to convince Williams of the insufficiency of those grounds which had led him to reject the fellowship of the Massachusetts churches. When Roger Williams was in England, in the year 1643, he probably submitted this Letter to the inspection of his friends, and by some means, but without his authority, it was put in print. His 'formerly intended Answer,' which he had withheld with the hope that the views of Cotton might in time be modified, was accordingly presented 'to the same publike view,' and in turn drew from Cotton this elaborate Reply. At this time Cotton and Williams were engaged in their more celebrated controversy respecting Toleration, and it therefore happened that this tract, which was published in 1647, made its appearance in the same volume with The Bloudy Tenent Washed, a circumstance which has caused it to be sometimes confounded with a work with which in reality it had no connection. It was the earlier written of the two, although in the volume it has the second place."

The/Declaration/of the/Reasons and Motives/For the Present/Appearing in Arms/of/Their Majesties/Protestant Subjects/In the Province of/Maryland./Licens'd, November 28th, 1689. J. F.

Colophon: Maryland: Printed by William Nuthead at the City of St. / Maries. Re-printed in LONDON, and Sold by Randal Tay-/lor near Stationers Hall, 1689./

8 pp. Folio. (31 cm.) Half morocco, top edges gilt. Brinley copy, No. 3670.

This pamphlet was issued by "An Association in arms for the defence of the Protestant religion, and for asserting the right of King William and Queen Mary to the Province of Maryland and all the English dominions," at the head of which was John Coode, and was formed in April, 1689. It is a reprint of the earliest known Maryland printer. No record has been found of the existence of an original copy.

From the following extract from Minutes of the Council of Virginia, it appears that William Nuthead began printing at James City, Va., prior to 1683. "John Buckner was summoned before the Council for his presumption in printing the Acts of Assembly made in November, 1682, without a licence. He answered that he had given the printer order to print nothing without the Governor's licence, and had only struck off a couple of sheets for His Excellency's approbation. The Board was satisfied therewith, but ordered Buckner and William Nulhead (Nuthead), the printer, to enter into bond for one hundred pounds to print nothing further until the King's pleasure was known. James City, Feb. 21, 1682." (Gt. Brit. Cal. of state papers. Col. ser. Am. and W. I., 1681–85, Lond. 1898, p. 390.)

The earliest record of William Nuthead in Maryland, is in the Proceedings of the Maryland Assembly, Oct. 20, 1686, "To Wm. Nutthead Printer fiue Thousand fiue Hundred & fifty pounds of Tobaccoe" (An Act for the Payment and Assess*mt* of the publique Charge . . .) Archives, v. 13, p. 131. On Oct. 14, 1693, "it was ordered by advice in Council, that the Printer hereafter presume to print noething but blank bills & Bonds, without leave from his Excy or the further Order of this Board." (ibid. v. 20, p. 33.) Nuthead at this time was about thirty-nine years of age. His name is among the signers to "The Humble Address of the Mayor, etc., of the city of Snt. Maries in the said province, 1694," (ibid. v. 19, p. 75.) He died about the year 1695. In 1696, Dinah Nuthead petitioned the Assembly for a license which was granted. In the Bond for Printing, she is mentioned as Dinah Nuthead of Ann Arundell County, Widow; her press was probably moved to Annapolis at the time it was selected as the capital.

The "Declaration" has been re-printed in the Archives, v. 8, pp. 101–111; Mag. of Am. hist., v. 1, pp. 118–124; and Scharf's Maryland, v. 1, pp. 310–315.

Of the highest interest for the history of New York, concerning which, see Asher, No. 7. The engraved view of "t' Fort Nieuw-Amsterdam op de Manhatens," on page 9, is not in the second edition.

"A large part of this very rare work is devoted to a description of the natives of the New Netherlands. Van der Donck arrived in New Amsterdam in 1642. He served as the sheriff of the colony of Rensselaerwyck, and purchased an estate on the Hudson, near the site of the village of Yonkers. Before this work was published, he had printed, An Exposition of the New Netherlands (Hague, 1650), in which the administrations of Kieft and Stuyvesant were vigorously assailed. A division of the work before us, found on page 52, is entitled, 'Of the manners and peculiar customs of the natives of the New-Netherlands.' This is subdivided into twenty-one sections, each treating of some of the peculiarities of the savages of the state of New York. The whole covering pp. 52 to 81. The treatise possesses an interest beyond its rarity, in being the relation of an educated man, regarding the Indians of the island and neighborhood of New York. The work was translated by Gen. J. Johnson, and printed in the sixth volume of the New York Historical Society."—Field, Indian Bibliography.

The Federalist:/A Collection/of/Essays,/written in favour of the/ New Constitution,/as agreed upon by the Federal Convention,/ September 17, 1787./In two volumes. New York: Printed and sold by J. and A. M'Lean, / No. 41, Hanover-Square, M,DCC,LXXXVIII.

2 vols., 16°. (17½ cm.) Red crushed levant morocco, gilt back and top edges, inside border, by F. Bedford. Uncut.

First edition.

By Alexander Hamilton, James Madison, and John Jay.

"The essays of the Federalist were written at a special time for a special purpose. They formed an elaborate argument, intended to convince the people of the country of the value and usefulness of the proposed Constitution, and it is, therefore, historically essential that we should have them in the precise form in which they did their work.

The Federalist furthermore was the first authoritative interpretation of the Constitution, and was mainly written by the two principal authors of that instrument. It was the first exposition of the Constitution and the first step in the long process of development which has given life, meaning, and importance to the clauses agreed upon at Philadelphia. It has acquired all the weight and sanction of a judicial decision, and has been constantly used as an authority in the settlement of constitutional questions."—H. C. Lodge's Introd. to the Federalist.

Ford, Henry Chapman.

The Franciscan missions of California. With outlines of history, descriptions, etc. By Henry Chapman Ford. New York: The Studio Press, 1883.

28 pp., and 24 proof etchings, with letter-press. Portfolio. (17 x 22 inches.) Half morocco.

Imperial edition. "This Imperial edition is limited to 50 copies only. The etchings are on Japan and the letter-press on antique paper." This is No. 49.

The San Francisco "Bulletin," in speaking of Mr. Ford's work at the old Missions, says: "Each Mission has been the subject of special study, and great patience was required on the part of Mr. Ford to enable him to become thoroughly acquainted with each particular building. Some, that are now shapeless heaps of broken, rain-washed adobes, have been reproduced from old paintings and daguerreotypes. It is an undoubted fact that the only true representations of the California Missions extant are those in Mr. Ford's studio, and we venture the assertion that their equal in truthfulness and artistic presentation will never be reproduced."

3 vols. in 2, Folio; (28½ x 18½ cm.) Uniformly bound with the first edition.

A fine set of this grand series of voyages is one of the desiderata in an American collection.—Sabin.

The second and best edition. It was reprinted, London, 1809–12, 5 vols.

"This is one of the copies with the title page of the first volume bearing the date of 1599. The volume was not reprinted, only the title page. There is no mention made of the Cadiz Voyage, to omit which, might be one reason of reprinting that page."

A large, clean, and exceedingly fine copy, with the original "Voyage to Cadiz," forming pages 607–19 of the first volume, which is wanting in many copies, having been suppressed by order of Queen Elizabeth, after the disgrace of the Earl of Essex.

This elaborate and excellent collection redounds as much to the Glory of the English nation, as any book that was published in it."—Oldys.

Oldys devotes twenty pages of his "British Librarian" to a minute and excellent analysis of this edition, pp. 137–158.

"Mr. E. D. Neill's Monograph "Pocahontas and her Companions, would hardly have been printed had he given credit to the letters written by Sir Thomas Dale and Alex. Whittaker, announcing the marriage of Pocahontas to John Rolfe, and the long one by the latter gentleman himself, minutely relating his alternate qualms of conscience and paroxysms of love, the latter finally victoriously compelling him to lead the Indian princess to the altar. Hamor visited the Court of Powhatan, and his minute relations of the characteristics of the Indians of Virginia are full of interest, as being among the earliest accounts of them printed."—*Field. "This is the original work for the history of Tennessee and the one on which later books are to a greater or less extent based. The author lived near enough to the pioneers to receive reports and memories from them. He was also a student and a sound political thinker and is the chief authority for accounts of the Indians; but as he rested his work mainly on the narratives of the pioneers in their old age he has fallen into many blunders."—*S. Notes on the state of Virginia, written in the Year 1781, somewhat corrected and enlarged in the winter of 1782, for the use of a Foreigner of distinction, in answer to certain queries pro-

a Newton could be formed. I do not mean to deny, that there are varieties in the race of man, diſtinguiſhed by their powers both of body and mind. I believe there are, as I ſee to be the caſe in the races of other animals. I only mean to ſuggeſt a doubt, whether the bulk and faculties of animals depend on the ſide of the Atlantic on which their food happens to grow, or which furniſhes the elements of which they are compounded? Whether nature has enliſted herſelf as a Cis or Trans-Atlantic partiſan? I am induced to ſuſpect, there has been more eloquence than ſound reaſoning diſplayed in ſupport of this theory; that it is one of thoſe caſes where the judgment has been ſeduced by a glowing pen: and whilſt I render every tribute of honor and eſteem to the celebrated Zoologiſt, who has added, and is ſtill adding, ſo many precious things to the treaſures of ſcience, I muſt doubt whether in this inſtance he has not cheriſhed error alſo, by lending her for a moment his vivid imagination and bewitching language.* (4)

So far the Count de Buffon has carried this new theory of the tendency of nature to belittle her productions on this ſide the Atlantic. Its application to the race of whites, tranſplanted from Europe, remained for the Abbé Raynal. 'On doit etre etonné (he ſays)

*no writer, equally with M. de Buffon proves the power of eloquence & uncertainty of theories. he takes any hypothesis whatever or it's reverse, & furnishes explanations equally specious and persuasive. thus in his 4th & 11th vol. wishing to explain why the largest animals are found in the torrid zone, he assumes heat as the efficient principle of the animal volume: speaking of america he says, 'la terre y est froide, impuissante a produire les principes actifs, a developer et se multiplier, toute la chaleur de l'ardeur des hommes, et la grandeur des animaux dependent de la salubrité et de la chaleur de l'air.' ib. 160. in his Epochs again it is become convenient to his theory to consider the bones of the mammoth found in the coldest regions, as the bones of the elephant, & necessary to explain how the elephant there should have been 4 times as large as that of the torrid zone, it is cold which produces animal volume. 'tout ce qu'il y a de colossal et de grand dans la nature, a ete forme dans les terres du nord.' 1. Epoq. 'c'est dans les regions de notre Nord que la nature vivante s'est elevee a ses plus grandes dimensions.' ib. 263.

An Act for establishing Religious Freedom, passed in the Assembly of Virginia in the beginning of the year 1786. 4 pp.

"This edition of Mr. Jefferson's celebrated 'Notes' was evidently printed in Paris; but as Mr. Jefferson did not reach France until the year 1784, the date on the title probably is not that of the year in which it was printed, but of the year in which the manuscript was completed. A copy presented to M. Malesherbe had the following note, in Mr. Jefferson's handwriting; 'Mr. Jefferson having had a few copies of these notes printed to present to some of his friends, and to some estimable characters beyond that line, takes the liberty of presenting a copy to M. de Malesherbe, as a testimony of his respect to his character. Unwilling to expose them to public eye, he begs the favour of M. de M. to put them into the hands of no person on whose care and fidelity he cannot rely, to guard them against publication."—Rich, v. 1, p. 301.

"The proofsheets of this work, with corrections in the handwriting of the author, are in the New York State Library at Albany."—J. Sabin.

Jefferson, Thomas.

A very rare Jansen imprint. Thomas in his "History of Printing in America," v. 2, p. 26, says: "I have met with only one book with Jansen's name in the imprint," while Hildeburn, in "Issues of Pennsylvania Press," 1685–1784 (1885), enumerates thirty-five different publications bearing Jansen's imprint.

"It is made up of extracts from Keith's work, written while he was a member of the Society of Friends, and was published in London in 1700, after he had joined the Church of England, by some of his former co-religionists. The Philadelphia Monthly Meeting on 10th mo., 2d, 1700, ordered 'four or five hundred of the sheets lately come out of England, called the Defence of Christianity of the Quakers, by George Keith,' printed with as much speed as possible, and brought to the next monthly meeting in order to be disposed."—Hildeburn.

Loskiel, George Henry, 1740-1814.

History of the mission of the United Brethren among the Indians in North America, in three parts. By George Henry Loskiel. Translated from the German by Christian Ignatius La Trobe. London: Printed for the Brethren's society for the furtherance of the Gospel, 1794.

xii, 159, 234, 233, [22] pp., folded map, 8°. (21 cm.) Half calf.

Part I. is entirely taken up with an account of the Indians themselves; the other parts with the missionary operations of the United Brethren, i. e. the Moravians. The story which goes down to 1787 is minute and manifestly painstaking and derived from the narratives of the workers, as the preface claims. The translation is well done. The appendix gives the stated rules of the society of the United Brethren for propagating the gospel among the heathen. There is an index of 21 pages.

Hildeburn attributes the authorship of this work to Thomas Maule, a prominent Quaker of Salem. I find no further authority. Mr. A. C. Goodell in A biographical sketch of Thomas Maule, in the Essex Institute. Historical Collections, I series, v. 3, does not mention the work. It was printed in Philadelphia by Bradford or Jansen. H. Stevens says the latter. Hildeburn gives Jacob Taylor?

This is a unique copy. After considerable search I have failed to find the existence of another copy. Mr. J. H. Trumbull, in the Brinley Catalogue, says: "Superlatively rare: Not in the Am. Antiq. Society's (Haven's) Catalogue of Ante-revolutionary publications, nor in the iv, 45 pp., 8°. (21 cm.) Half red morocco.

"In the preface to the "Minutes," it is stated that they were discovered (on the late capture of New York by the British troops) among the papers of a person who appears to have been Secretary to the Committee." They relate to a conspiracy known as 'the Hickey Plot,' against Congress, and particularly against Washington whom the conspirators proposed to carry off. "A Mr. Matthews, late Mayor of New York," says the Monthly Review, LVI, p. 232, "who was prominent in the conspiracy, was condemned to suffer death, but Congress resolved to postpone the execution of the sentence, and ordered him to be carried into Connecticut, there to be imprisoned till further orders." Hickey, the ringleader, and one of Washington's life-guards, was publicly executed in New York city. The work contains some curious scandal about Washington and Mary Gibbons, "a girl from New Jersey, of whom General Washington was very fond, and whom he maintained genteelly at a house near Mr. Skinner's."—Sabin.

A Memorial, containing A Summary View of Facts, with their Authorities, In Answer to the Observations sent by the English Ministry to the Courts of Europe. Translated from the French. Philadelphia: Printed by James Chattin, 1757.

iv, 338 pp., 8°. (19½ cm.) Dark green morocco, gilt back and top edges, uncut.

Portraits of Washington, inserted: engraved by W. Riley, after title, and by F. Holloway, opposite p. 124.

This edition is in larger type than the New York editions of the same date. The work was reprinted in the second volume of Craig's "Olden Time," and is appended to the Dublin edition of [Livingston's] "Review," some of the papers are re-translations from the French.

"A translation from the French edition "Mémoire contenant le précis des faits [etc.], Paris, 1756. "At the surrender of Fort Necessity by Washington, his Journal of the Expedition, together with the letters of Braddock to the British Ministry, and his instructions to Washington, were seized by the French victors. They were immediately transmitted to France, and by order of the French King, printed and sent to every court of Europe, as indicating the aggressive character of the British. The Memorial includes the Journal of Major George Washington, pp. 124–173. It was of so much consequence that no less than five editions of translations were published."—*Field. M——y, which however extraordinary they may appear, are yet supported by such Testimonies of authentick Papers and Memoirs; as neither Confidence, can out-brave; nor Cunning invalidate. By a Patriot. Monstrum Horrendum! London: Printed for and sold by W. Cater, 1759.

319 pp., 8°. (20 cm.) Polished calf, gilt edges, by W. Pratt.

"The above title conveys no adequate idea of the contents of this very interesting book. The first part is a statement of affairs, and an analysis of them, from the Peace of Utrecht, till some months after Braddock's defeat. The second part contains the original documents or vouchers for the Narratives. These comprise the memorials and letters that passed between the English and French officers in Canada and Nova Scotia, and other English colonies, especially on the Ohio, from 1751 to 1755, including the chief papers that fell into the hands of the French after the surrender of Fort Necessity, and Braddock's defeat, such as Washington's Journal and Letters, Stobo's Letters to Washington, Braddock's Letters, etc., etc., some of which papers are re-translations from the French."—*H. First edition. The Address "To the Reader," is signed "John Higginson. Thomas Thacher." Concerning the extreme rarity of the first edition of this important work, it will be sufficient to remark, that we know of but three perfect copies in the United States, the last five leaves, "A Brief Chronological Table," are often wanting. "Morton's Memorial is a work of high authority and is confined chiefly to Plymouth Colony. It was compiled principally from manuscripts of his uncle, William Bradford, and comprises the period between 1620 and 1646. The journals of Edward Winslow also furnished materials for the work."—J. R. Bartlett.

Thomas Prince thus speaks of this work: "In 1720 came out Mr. Neal's History of New England, which I was glad to see, and pleased with both his spirit, style, and method. And though he has fallen into many mistakes which are commonly known to us, some of which he seems to derive from Mr. Oldmixon's New England; . . . yet considering the materials this worthy writer was confined to, and that he was never here; it seems to me scarce possible, that any under his disadvantages should form a better. In comparing him with the authors from whence he draws, I am surprised to see the pains he has taken to put the materials in such a regular order: And to me it seems as if many parts of his work cannot be mended."—Chronology of New England. Pref. p. iii.

The authorship of the above is attributed to General Oglethorpe by Nichols. See his "Literary Anecdotes," London, 1812, v. II., pp. 17-19. The tract is reprinted in the first volume of the Collections of the Georgia Historical Society. The editor of this volume, in introducing the tract, attributes it to General Oglethorpe on the authority of Nichols, and adds, "As the production of the illustrious founder of Georgia, it will ever command an attentive perusal, and though the gorgeous and utopian descriptions he gives of these provinces, have ceased to influence the visionary and the avaricious, yet it is interesting to behold the medium through which he viewed his darling project, and the means by which he prosecuted his designs."

Perkins, James Handasyd, 1810-1849.

Annals of the West: embracing a concise account of principal events which have occurred in the Western States and territories from the discovery of the Mississippi valley to the year eighteen hundred and fifty. Compiled from the most authentic sources for the projector. First edition. By James H. Perkins. St. Louis: James R. Albach, 1851.

xxiii, [24] 818 pp., 8°. (23 cm.) Sheep.

This valuable work of reference was originated by James R. Albach, who collected materials and issued a "Prospectus" in 1845.

"James H. Perkins was a careful student of the early history of the country and contributed many articles to the periodical literature of his day on the subject of Indian history and border warfare, which have been collected in the Memoir and writings of James Handasyd Perkins, Edited by William Henry Channing, and published in 2 vols. at Boston in 1851."—A. Penn, prior to the grant of the province, and the religious society of the people called Quakers; with the first rise of the neighbouring colonies, more particularly of West-New-Jersey, and the settlement of the Dutch and Swedes on Delaware. To which is added, a brief description of the said province, and of the general state, in which it flourished, principally between the years 1760 and 1780, by Robert Proud. . . . *Philadelphia: Z. "Proud was a poor school teacher and laboured under much difficulty in raising sufficient money to publish his history, which is now so much sought after. The public spirited and benevolent men who signed the contract prove that Proud was not totally devoid of friends among the wealthy. He fully expected the co-operation and assistance of the Quaker element, in whose interest, he says, he wrote his history, but for petty reasons this was denied him, they not only refusing to purchase the book, but used all sorts of argument to induce others not to buy it, which in a great measure placed the book under a cloud for nearly a century after its publication. The author having ended his days in poverty, depending for support on the charity of his friends, died knowing that if his own generation did not appreciate his efforts, those to come would."—Proud Papers.

8 p. l., 272 pp., 12°. (16½ cm.) Red crushed levant morocco, paneled sides, gilt back and edges, inside border, by F. Bedford.

"The first part of this work, "A relation of the invasion and conquest of Florida . . ." is a translation of the anon. Portuguese "Relaçam verdadeira . . .," but was made from the French version by Citri de la Guette published a year previous, entitled "Histoire de la conqueste de la Floride . . .," Paris, 1685. The new anon. English translator was evidently ignorant of Hakluyt's translation, published in 1609 as "Virginia richly valued . . ." and in 1611 as "The worthye and famovs history of the travailes, discouery, & conquest . . . of Terra Florida . . ." to which it is "very inferior," says W. B. Rye, "and erroneous as to numbers, distances, and names of places." He has taken even his preface and table of chapter headings from the French version, changing only the closing phrase of the French preface" . . . la Florida que les François ont découvert par les ordres du Roy . . ." to ". . . the English plantations on that continent . . ." and omitting the 5 pp. "Privilege du Roy."

The "Two journeys of the present emperour of China into Tartary . . ." by Ferdinand Verbiest, and "Some discoveries made by the Spaniards in the island of California . . ." taken from the letters of the admiral Isadoro Atondo y Antillon, are translated from "Voyages de l'empereur de la Chine dans la Tartarie, ausquels on a joint une nouvelle découverte au Mexique," Paris, 1685.

The first of Verbiest's letters has special title page, "A journey of the emperor of China into East-Tartary. In the year 1682. London: Printed by F. Collins for J. Lawrence, 1686," p. [221].

The entire work was reissued with a new title page which omitted all reference to the major portion of its contents, the account of Florida: "Two journeys of the present emperour of China into Tartary, in the years 1682 and 1683. With some discoveries made by the Spaniards in the island of California, in the year 1683. London, Printed for J. Lawrence, 1687."

Vol. I, The Fourth edition. London, 1775, map, 8°. (24½ cm.) Uncut.

These editions contain a "Map of the Environs of Boston in 1775," together with several important papers not included in the first edition.

"Almon was a successful bookseller and journalist of liberal views, at the height of his career during our Revolutionary period. He was radical enough to be the ardent friend of John Wilkes, and sympathized fully with the contention of the Thirteen Colonies, which he helped with all his influence. His boldness brought him more than once under penalty of the law, and at one time he was driven into exile in France. Among his numerous writings and collections the Remembrancer, published monthly and running through the time of our war, from 1775 to 1784, has especial importance. Its plan was to select from the public prints accounts of the material public events, to issue them in octavo, and at the end of the volume to give a copious index. Almon throughout each year furnished, together with appropriate comments a miscellany of news-jottings, state-papers, letters, documents of any kind likely to interest. Many important matters are here preserved, rare, or not at all to be found elsewhere. It is a fact worth noting that a man with a shrewd eye to business found his account in such a publication, there being many readers for it in the England of that day. The Remembrancer was supplemented by Prior documents (see Almon, J.), noteworthy papers preceding the outbreak. Indispensable to the student of the Revolution."—*James K. Hosmer, in Larned, J. N. 4, viii, 342, [2], lxxxix, [3] pp., 7 plates, 3 maps, 1 folded table, 8°. (18 cm.) Blue crushed levant morocco, gilt back and edges, inside border, by F. Bedford. Brinley copy, No. 4365.

The copper plates were designed and engraved by the author. In this copy they are placed in the following order: (1) Frontispiece, vol. I; (2) Dedication, "To John Ellis, Esqr. . . . Agent for the Province of West-Florida;" (3) "Avena aquatica Sylvestris," p. 31; (4) "Characteristick Chicasaw-head," p. 59; (5) "Characteristick Chactaw-Busts," p. 82; (6) Treatment of the dead by the Chactaws, p. 89; (7) "Characteristick head of a Creek War Chief, p. 93; Maps in the appendix: (9) "Entrances of Tampa Bay," p. lxxviii; (10) "Pensacola Bar," p. lxxxiv; (11) "Mobile Bar," p. lxxxv.

Plate (8) [Chactaw and Creek hieroglyphics], 2 plates on one sheet, p. 102 is missing.

The folded table: "An aggregate and Valuation of Imports and Exports of Produce from the province of Georgia from 1754 to 1773. Compiled by William Brown, p. 104."

This extremely rare work is seldom found in any other than a fragmentary condition. "It appears from the 'Advertisement' at the end of the volume that the two whole sheet maps were not published until later. Mr. Romans in the Mass. Gazette of Oct. 10, 1774, informed 'the Public that his Maps are now ready for Publication, the Copper Plates being done, and the Paper, which he was obliged to get manufactured on Purpose is likewise furnished, but not yet received from Philadelphia, or else at least a great part would have been delivered before now. The Subscribers may rest assured of receiving the copies within the time prescribed, which is the first of January next."

"As his edition is small, it is requested that such Gentlemen who incline to have Copies, may Subscribe, as after Publication none will be to be had for less than 16 Dollars."

These maps are in Map division of the Library of Congress, and are described as follows: Two whole sheet maps in three parts, measuring 21 x 90; 29 x 56 and 26 x 85 inches. The dedication on the first sheet reads, "To the Marine society of the city of New York, this chart is humbly inscribed by their most obed't servant B. Romans." [New York, 1774.] "B. Romans inv. delin. & æra incidet." These maps are so rare that bibliographers have doubted their existence. The "Advertisement" also admits of the loss of the plate of a full page map to face p. 72, which accounts for the fact there is no copy known to have more than eleven plates. Volume 2 never appeared. The work was issued the following year with an abridged title, less preliminary matter and without the Appendix, but the text in the body of the work is the same in both editions.

member of the Recollects in Paris, was directed by a congregation of his order to accompany Father Nicholas, in a mission to the savages of New France. He sailed from Dieppe in the latter part of March, 1624, and arrived at Quebec after a voyage of three months and six days, during which he endured such sufferings, that he says the whole of his life has not equaled in pain. He proceeded at once to the scene of his mission among the Hurons, one hundred and fifty leagues west of Quebec. Here he remained but a few months, when it was determined to send him to Quebec, for supplies. His fortitude was not equal to the emergency, and worn down with the privations and sufferings of a missionary life, he allowed himself to be persuaded by his brethren that it was not his vocation. He accordingly returned to his convent in Paris, where he wrote the work we have considered, and four years subsequently, produced his 'Histoire du Canada.'"—Field. "L'Auteur de cet Ouvrage," says Charlevoix (Liste et Examen des auteurs, p. xlix), "avoit demeuré quelque tems parmi les Hurons, & raconte naïvement tout ce qu'il a vû, et oui dire sur les lieux, mais, n'a pas eu le tems de voir assez bien les choses il encore moins de verifier tout ce qu'on lui avoit dit. Le Vocabulaire Huron, qu'il nous a laissé, prouve que ni lui, ni aucun de ceux, qu'il a pu consulter, ne sçavoient bien cette langue laquelle est trés-difficile; pár conséquent que les conversions des Sauvages n'ont pas été en grand nombre de son tems. D'ailleurs il paroît homme fort judicieux, et très zélé, non-seulement pour le salut des ames, mais encore pour le progrès d'une Colonie, qu'il avoit presque vû naître, & qu'il a vuê presque étouffée dans son berceau, par l'invasion des Anglois. Du reste il nous apprend peu de choses intéressantes."—J. Sabin.

"The travels and missionary labors of the Recollects among the Indians of Canada, for nine years before the arrival of Father Sagard, form the subject of Book I. The narrative of his "Grand Voyage to the Country of the Hurons," which appeared three years before, is extended by additional particulars, from chapters xxii, in the edition of 1632, to xlvi in Book II of the 'Histoire du Canada.' Book III is a reproduction of Part II of the 'Grand Voyage,' with new matter, increasing it from 85 to 135 pages. Book IV contains the history of the Recollect missions to the end of 1629."—*Field. "The statement made by some bibliographers, that this edition is also accompanied by the Huron dictionary is a mistake. The copy described by Harrisse ("Notes sur la Nouvelle France," No. 62) was evidently not the "Histoire du Canada" at all, but a copy of the "Grand Voyage" with the wrong title prefixed."—*J. D. and/I. H. for Michael Sparkes,/*1627.

1 p. l., [12], 96, 105-248 pp., 4 maps, 4°. (28 x 18 cm.)

A fine large clean tall copy, with a brilliant impression of the beautiful title page engraved by Barrá; the inscription over the portrait of Charles is altered from "Carolvs Princeps," as in the 1624 edition to "Carolus Rex," and a crown is added. The four maps are mounted on the finest muslin. Bound in the best French gros grained red morocco, gilt edges, by Pratt, for H. Stevens, in every respect a desirable copy, with none of the usual defects, except a little restoration by Harris, hardly to be seen, in the centre of the title, and the margins of the large map of Virginia; the slip with the errata of seven lines is missing.

Of the three impressions of the large map of Virginia, first published in 1612, this is the second, and the right one for this edition, before Sparkes Point was put in. Of the nine editions of the map of New England, with the portrait of Capt. Smith, this is the third, before the portrait was retouched, before Charles River was extended, and before Salem and Boston were put in. Very few copies of the editions of 1624, 1626, and 1627 have all the right maps. The plate of the map of New England was much altered after 1627, and names of places added which were not given till 1628, 1630, or later. It is very important to have the right maps, corresponding to the date of the edition.—See Stevens, H. Bibliotheca historica, Boston, 1870, p. 169.

"The authorship of the 'Historical Account,' has been ascribed by Rich, Allibone, and others, to Thomas Hutchins, at that time Geographer of the United States, who supplied the map, but the following extract from a letter of Dr. William Smith, Provost of the College of Philadelphia, dated January 13, 1766, seems a sufficient proof that the credit belongs to him. 'Mr. Croghan,' he writes to Sir William Johnson, 'set out the day before I expected he would, else I proposed sending you a copy of "Bouquet's Expedition to Muskingum," which I drew up from some papers he favored me with, and which is reprinted in England, and has a very favorable reception.'

The corrections in writing, on the fly leaves of vol. 2, indicate that it was one of the original copies, perhaps the author's copy.

Vol. 1, originally intended to form a complete work, has title: History of Canada . . . to the peace of 1763.

"This work printed in 1815 was not published before 1826 from motives not exactly known. The true motive was probably interest. Some expressions and opinions might affect his prospects or character. It was Mrs. Smith who at last gave orders for its publication at the moment that the author and she were embarking for England. —Gagnon, Bibl. Canadienne, 1895, p. 467.

"The defenceless condition of our plantations, is by this author ascribed to a disunion among our colonies in North America, an abuse of power in former governors, and the defection of our Indian allies; which last he imputes to our ill treatment of those allies." The second letter is intended to give a general view of the British colonies, and the number of inhabitants, which, our author thinks, ought to be placed at about 900,000. We must remark that this gentleman does not pretend to any personal knowledge of the countries he treats of, nor have we any assurance of the authenticity of his relations or computations: however, 'tis certain, he has made some very pertinent reflections."—Monthly Rev., v. xii, 1755, p. 483.

This work was reprinted in lithographic facsimile in New York in 1848 for Henry Austin Brady. It is now scarce. It was again reprinted, with introduction by Cyrus Townsend Brady, LL. D. in Cleveland in 1903, by the Burrows Brother Company. The following is from the Introduction: "Little is known of the personality of the author save what may be gathered from his book. He lived in the Province of Pennsylvania between 1682 and 1697 and he was a Quaker. The book was probably written in England. A person of his name was again in Pennsylvania in 1702, an applicant for a commission as collector of quit rents in New Castle County. As is seen from his book he inveighed against George Fox in 1697-98, and in 1702 sided against Penn with Colonel Quarry.

The variety and extent of his information, the general accuracy of his statements, the simplicity and clearness of his style, the pleasing quaintness of his several addresses to the reader, the admirable brevity with which he has discussed the subject he has allotted to himself, the absence in the main of all exaggeration, the avoidance of the legendary absurdities with which most travelers' tales of the period abound—have all conduced to render his book a classic of its kind. It has been quoted again and again by various authorities, and always with approbation, in spite of its one fault, the pardonable extravagance of an advocate whose affections are deeply engaged in the cause for which he pleads."

The late Mr. Quaritch said of this book: "There are probably not more than eight or nine copies of this little volume saved in the libraries of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, while there must be at least fifty thousand persons desirous of possessing it."

"This tract was probably inspired, if not wholly written by Franklin. Dr. William Smith is known to have been the author of 'A Brief State, and a Brief View, &c., of the Conduct of Pennsylvania.' In the list of his published works, appended to his 'Life, &c.,' by Horace W. Smith, he is said to have been the author of this reply to his two former publications. Dr. Smith's relations with the Assembly just at that time render any such claim ridiculous. The Assembly would hardly have rewarded him for procuring an order from the 'King in Council,' annulling some of their resolves with a request to act as their apologist."—Hildeburn.

"This was a case of very great importance at the time it took place. The plaintiff bought meat of the defendant, a butcher, and tendered to him certain paper money issued by act of the General Assembly of Rhode Island, which was refused. The defendant pleaded, 'that it appears that the act had expired, and hath no force; that the matters of complaint are made triable before the superior judicial court of the State,' &c. 'If the complaint was sustained by the judgment of the court, the creditor, merchant, farmer, and every vendor was prostrated in utter ruin.' 'The whole community,' says Mr. Updike, 'was stirred to its very foundations. Upon its issue was involved the destiny of thousands. Public feeling was intense upon its result. The crisis arose, and the experiment was on trial, whether the people were capable of self-government, and upon its issue depended the fate of the nation.'"—Catalogue of the Library of John Carter Brown, v. 4, p. 267.

"Also attributed to John Eliot and to Thomas Shepard." Dr. Samuel A. Green, in the Proceedings of the Massachusetts Hist. Society, second series, v. 6, 1891, pp. 392-395, says: "In a note to this preface, the Publishing Committee of the Society ascribed the authorship of the pamphlet to the Rev. John Eliot; but there is internal evidence that he did not write it. While no authority is given for their statement, there are several passages in the tract which go to show that it was the production of another person," such as the following: "Hee that God hath raised up and enabled to preach unto them, is a man (you know) of a most sweet, humble, loving, gracious and enlarged spirit, whom God hath blest, and surely will still delight in, & do good by" (page 21). "It is clearly certain that Eliot would not have used this language about himself."

In the Appendix (p. 46) to a discourse preached at Natick, on February 17, 1830, by the Rev. Alexander Young, it is said, on the authority of Christopher C. Baldwin, at that time Librarian of the American Antiquarian Society at Worcester, where the original editions of these pamphlets are found, that the Rev. John Wilson, of Boston, was the author; and the presumption seems to lie wholly in that direction." Dr. Green goes on further to prove that Thomas Shepard was not the author of the anonymous tract.

A Journal of the Transactions and Occurrences in the settlement of Massachusetts and the other New-England Colonies, from the year 1630 to 1644; written by John Winthrop, Esq., First Governor of Massachusetts: and now first published from a correct copy of the original manuscript. . . . Hartford: Elisha Babcock, M.DCC.XC.

3 p. l., 364, [4] pp., 8°. (20 cm.) Original calf.

Isaac Backus's copy, with his autograph.

"Mr. Winthrop kept a journal of every important occurrence from his first embarking for America in 1630, to the year 1644. This manuscript, as appears by some passages, was originally designed for publication; and it was formerly consulted by the first compilers of New England history, particularly by Hubbard, Mather, and Prince. On reading the work, the editor (N. Webster) found it to contain many curious and interesting facts relating to the settlement of Massachusetts and the other New England colonies, and highly descriptive of the character and views of the first inhabitants. By consent of the descendants of Gov. Winthrop proposals were issued for publishing a small number of copies."—Editor's Preface.

Chronicles of Border Warfare, or A history of the settlement by the whites, of North Western Virginia: and of the Indian wars and massacres, in that section of the state; with reflections, anecdotes, &c. By Alexander S. Withers. Clarksburg, Va.: Published by Joseph Israel, 1831.

319, [1], iv, [1] pp., 12°. (17½ cm.) Sheep, in good condition.

"Of this scarce book, very few copies are complete or in good condition, having been issued in a remote corner of Northwestern Virginia, and designed principally for a local circulation, almost every copy was read by a country fireside until scarcely legible. Most of the copies lack the table of contents. The author took much pains to be authentic, and his chronicles are considered by Western Antiquarians, to form the best collection of frontier life and Indian warfare, that has been printed."—*Field. The earliest topographical account of Massachusetts colony.

"A very sprightly and masterful specimen of descriptive literature, embodying the results of precise observations directed toward the topography, climate, and productions of the country . . . It will not be easy for us to give a more felicitous account of the book than it gives of itself, when, upon its old title-page, it assures us that it is indeed "a true, lively, and experimental description" of the region that it treats of. The author had attained the fine art of packing his pages full of the most exact delineation of facts, without pressing the life and juice out of them; and, besides the extraordinary raciness and vivacity of his manner, he has an elegance of touch by no means common in the prose of his contemporaries. His style, indeed, is that of a man of genuine literary culture, and has the tone and flavor of the best Elizabethan prose-writers."—*Tyler, M. C. "Zarate filled the office of treasurer general in Peru, from 1543 to 1548. Having noted carefully in his journal, the incidents which occurred within the range of his own observation, he was enabled after his return to Spain, to write his history of the Conquest of the Incas, with great fidelity and clearness. The first volume is divided into four books, of which the first is devoted to descriptions of the natives of Peru, with some brief discussion regarding their origin. The remaining books are occupied with the relations of their conquest."—Field. Indian Bibliography.

"Zarate was a man of rank and education . . . His history, whether we attend to its matter or composition, is a book of considerable merit . . ."—Robertson. History of America, v. 2, p. 464.

The Intelligencer "was the first regularly issued newspaper in Illinois. In 1814 Matthew Duncan had a press at Kaskaskia, the then seat of government, and issued a weekly newspaper called the Illinois Herald. 'Mr. Blackwell says Matthew Duncan continued the publication of the paper for several years, and in 1816 it was purchased by D. P. Cook, Esq., and in the spring of the same year he (Blackwell) came to the Territory and purchased half of it, and the paper was published by Cook & Blackwell for one or two years, until Mr. Cook was elected Attorney General of the Territory. The firm was changed to Blackwell & Berry in 1818, at which time Mr. Blackwell was Territorial Auditor.' 'Col. Elijah C. Berry, the first of our state auditors, and a native of Kentucky, purchased the office and paper . . . and changed its name to Illinois Intelligencer, and enlarged its size to 20 by 25 inches.' The seat of government was removed to Vandalia in 1820, and the paper followed the public offices in their migration. In 1820 Hon. W. H. Brown purchased the interest of Robert Blackwell in the paper, and withdrew in 1823. He again became a partner in 1826 or '27, and continued for about two years, when he made way for Judge James Hall. The paper continued to be published until 1839."

The above volumes cover the important period of our history leading up to the great struggle between the North and South and all through that momentous period. Frederic Hudson says: "The Rebellion of 1861-65 gave [Mr. J. G. Bennett] his best opportunity to show what could be done in journalistic enterprise. Anticipating trouble at the South, he had dispatched half a dozen correspondents to the infected districts, and when the signal gun was fired at Fort Sumter, these correspondents were still at the South, and surrounded by excited crowds, ready to hang them on the first tree. The accounts of their narrow escapes were intensely graphic. With the organization of the first army, the Herald corps of army and navy correspondents were organized. With every division marched a young representative of that establishment. At every fight one of its correspondents was an eye-witness. There was a Herald tent and a Herald wagon with every army corps. Other journals of New York, Cincinnati, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore, St. Louis, were also extensively represented, but the Herald is taken as an illustration of the newspaper enterprise of the nation. Horses and servants were supplied to these correspondents. Their outfits were perfect. Occasionally a representative of the paper was made a prisoner. His wants were looked after while in the hands of the rebels. Of the details of a battle no efforts were spared to get the news to New York. Horses, steam, and electricity were freely used. No history of the war will be complete with the incidents connected with these war correspondents omitted. What did all this enterprise cost the Herald during the years 1861, '62, '63, '64, '65? Half a million of dollars! Yet the investment was a splendidly remunerative one."

"The course of the Herald through this stupendous struggle was a wise and patriotic one. It was appreciated by the people, by the executive, by the army, and by the navy."—Journalism in the United States . . . New York, 1873, pp. 482-484.

NEWSPAPERS, PERIODICALS, ETC.

Daily Lynchburg Republican, 1861-1865.

War files of the Daily Lynchburg Republican, a journal published in the city of Lynchburg, Virginia, embracing the period from August 1st, 1861, to September 31, 1865. Compiled by Thomas D. Houston, of Fincastle, Va.

Bound in five volumes. Folio.

This was the first paper in Virginia to advocate secession. The only file in existence. Daily with occasional tri-weekly issues inserted. The file is believed to be in effect perfect, for though a few dates are missing, it is understood that in nearly all cases where a number is wanting there was some interruption in the publication, owing to the difficulty of obtaining paper and other supplies.

HARTLEY PAPERS.

Hartley Papers.

[The Treaty between England and the United States. Containing nearly 200 letters and documents, in 5 volumes folio, and Map [see notice below]. From the appointment by George III., of David Hartley as his Minister Plenipotentiary for the settlement of peace with the American Commissioners at Paris on the 18th April, 1783, to the ratification of the Treaty in September, 1783.]

The whole of the letters and documents, with the exception of a few of the longest, are copies in the handwriting of David Hartley, were arranged by him, and form a complete history of the transactions of that period. Many of the letters are private, and of very great interest, affording an insight into the true motives of the great men of the period.

Mr. Justin Winsor, in a foot note, in the Mass. Historical Society Proceedings, Second Series, vol. 3, p. 366, says he received a letter from General Charles B. Norton (Boston, Oct. 30, 1867), in which he says: "I purchased the Hartley Papers at the sale in [London] in 1859. I offered the collection to the State Department in 1860, and a bill was offered in Congress for their purchase at that time. I struck off a circular of four pages, giving an analysis of their contents, which was sent to all historical societies and libraries. The papers were in a black walnut case, and the map with them. Long articles appeared in the 'Tribune' and the 'Post' at the time. During my absence with the army the collection was sold to a Mr. [John F.] Hartley, [Assistant Secretary] of the Treasury Department. He has since died; and at the sale of his library the papers were doubtless purchased by Joseph Sabin, of New York." They were afterwards sold to Mr. E. G. Asay, of Chicago, and finally by him to Mr. L. Z. Leiter in February, 1879.

Dr. William F. Poole, in a letter to Mr. Leiter, dated Feb. 21, 1879, recommending their purchase, says: "I had these papers in my custody, as Librarian of the Boston Athenæum some fifteen years ago, when they were left on sale. I examined them at the time and thought them to be of considerable historical value. They have since been mounted in volumes."

"Statesman and scientific inventor, son of David Hartley, the philosopher; matriculated at Corpus Christi College, Oxford, 6 April, 1747, aged 15; proceeded B. A. 14 March, 1750, and was fellow of Merton College until his death. He became a student of Lincoln's Inn in 1750; and soon met Benjamin Fanklin in London, who became his intimate friend and correspondent. He represented Hull in parliament from 1774 to 1780, and from 1782-4 and attained considerable reputation as an opponent of war with America, and of the African slave trade. It was probably owing to his friendship with Franklin, and to his consistent support of Lord Rockingham, that he was selected by the government to act as plenipotentiary in Paris, where on 3 Sept., 1783, he and Franklin drew up and signed the definitive treaty of peace between Great Britain and the United States of North America. He died at Bath 19 Dec., 1813, in his eighty-fourth year."—Dict. of Nat. Biography, vol. 25.

United States. The original Map of the United States of America, sketched by Franklin and H. B. M. Plenipotentiary, David Hartley, in Paris, in 1783.

The map measures 17½ by 23½ cm., sketched on writing paper. It is secured under glass, enclosed in a folded case.

"This most important document possesses historical and national interest, not only from its being executed by the two most influential of the parties in the settlement of peace, but marks the agreed boundaries and proposed Western States, and may yet play an important part, should any fresh dispute occur between the two countries."

In the year 1888, Mr. Theodore F. Dwight, of the Department of State, caused two photographic negatives to be made of the map, but they were failures owing to its being secured under glass.

See the interesting account of the search for this map by Justin Winsor, in his Cartographical History of the North-Eastern boundary controversy. Cambridge, 1887.

Head Qrs Valley Forge Decr 22. 1777.

Sir

On Saturday Evening I had the honor to receive your Favor of the 17th Inst with its Inclosure. The next day I wrote to Genl Burgoyne upon the subject of his application & transmitted him a Copy of the Resolution of Congress founded thereon. That the matter might not be delayed, I dispatched my Letter by the Express who brought yours, he having informed that you expected he would be sent with it.

It is with infinite pain & concern, that I transmit Congress the inclosed Copies of sundry Letters respecting the state of the Commissary's Department. In these matters are not exaggerated. I do not know from what cause this alarming deficiency, or rather total failure of Supplies arises: But unless more vigorous exertions and better regulations take place in that line and immediately, this Army must dissolve. I have done all in my power, by remonstrating — by writing to — by ordering the Commissaries on this Head from time to time, but without any good effect, or obtaining more than a present scanty relief. Owing to this, the march of the Army has been delayed upon more than one occasions

NEW YORK, Sep. 7, 1866.

MY DEAR SIR: The Letters of Washington, which I trans[mit] to you, are of unquestionable authority. They were received by me directly from Mr. Edward R. Laurens, the grandson of Henry Laurens, President of Congress, to whom, as you will see, they were originally addressed, in the two fold character of the confidential friend & the eminent official. The intercourse between Washington & the Laurens's, father & son—was of the most close & cordial character and their relations, always grateful & ever affectionate, were maintained through life.

You have my full assurance of the genuineness of all these documents.

Very respectfully,
Your ob't Servt.

W. L. ANDREWS, Esqr.

Manuscript. (Spanish.) With the signature and seal of Philip II.

Parchment manuscript containing the Proceedings of the Royal Court in Valladolid, assembled from October, 1595, to May, 1596, to re-examine the claims of a certain Juan Gutierrez, of Toro, in Spain, deceased, and his descendants, maintaining that they were of noble rank and therefore exempted from paying taxes of any kind and entitled to all the privileges of that class. These claims had been sustained at a previous trial, held in 1548, before the Royal Court in Valladolid, but were contested by the Crown through its fiscal in an appeal made to the present court. This court upheld the decision of the former court, condemning the Crown to bear the cost and ordered that a "carta executoria" with the royal leaden seal fastened by a colored silk cord and signed by the members of the court, should be delivered to the descendants of Juan Gutierrez. The decision was rendered on the 25th of May, 1596, the signatures headed by that of the king, "Yo el rey," are dated 26th of October, 1596.

41 leaves, with illuminated headlines, frontispiece, coat of arms in colors. Folio. (31 x 23 cm.) 1596. Enclosed in an old calf binding.

Four printed documents, and eight sheets in manuscript relating to D. Antonio Basilio Gutierrez y Ulloa, containing the coats of arms and accounts of the family are inserted in the front.

Clemens VIII. Pope.

Bull of Clemens VIII in which he confirms the propositions and regulations made by Diego Romano, bishop of Tlaxcala (Puebla) concerning the erection and administration of an asylum for poor girls of Spanish descent, and a convent for nuns in Puebla de los Angeles, both these institutions for which a certain Juan Baranco had left funds in his will, to be known as the Colegio de Jesus Maria. The Bull begins "Clemens episcopus servus servorun Dei ad perpetuam rei memoriam. Superna dispositione [etc.]," is dated "Romæ apud S. Petrum anno Incarnationis Dominicæ millesimo quingentesimo nonagesimo septimo Nono Kl. Martij Pontus nri Anno Sexto (Feb. 21, 1597). This Bull is printed in full in "Bullarum privilegiorum diplomaticum Romanorum Pontificum . . . Opera et studio Caroli Cocquelines." Romæ, 1753, Tom. V, pars. II, pp. 142-148.

22 leaves, including cover on parchment. Folio. (34 x 24 cm.)

Title rubricated and surrounded by an ornamental floriated border, also leaf facing title. The seal, attached to the manuscript by a silk cord (in red and yellow colors) has the customary inscriptions: the heads of St. Paul and St. Peter, divided by a Latin cross and headed by the letters S S on its face, and * ✠ * //CLE/MENS/ * Papa/ * VIII/ P P

"THE KNIGHT ought to be made all armed upon an horse in such wise that he have an helm on his head, and a spear in his right hand, and covered with his shield, a sword and a mace on his left side; clad with an hawberk and plates before his breast, leg-harness on his legs, spurs on his heels, on his hands his gauntlets; his horse well broken and taught, and apt to battle, and covered with arms."

covered with his arms. When the Knights bon made they bon bayned or bathed: that is the sign that they should lead a new life & new manners, also they make all the night in prayers & orysons unto god that he will give them grace that they may get that thing that they may not get by nature. The king or prince girdeth about them a sword in sign that they should abide & keep him of whom they take their dispenses & dignity. Also a Knight ought to be wise, liberal, true, strong, full of mercy & pity & keeper of the people & of the law. And right as Chevalry passeth other in virtue, in dignity, in honour & reverence right so ought he to surmount all other in vertue. For honour is nothing else, but to do reverence to another person for the good & virtuous disposition that is in him. A noble knight ought to be wise & proved before he is made Knight (what then is to be his new life & manners? we's) ib behoud him that he had long time used the war & arms, that he may be expert & wise for to govern the other. For since that a Knight is captain of a battle the life of them that shall be under him lyeth in his hand & therefore behoveth him to be wise & well advised: for sometime ast, craft, & engine is more worth than strength & hardiness of a man that is not proved in arms for other-while it happeth that when the prince of the battle affyeth & trusteth in his hardiness & strength & will not use wisdom & engine for to run upon his enemies he is conquished, & his people slain. Therefore saith the Philosopher that no man should chose young people to be captains & governors for as much as there is no certainty in their wisdoms.

The love of concupiscence & of lechery is soon dissolved & broken; but the very true love of the common wele & profit now a days is seld founden. Where shall thou find a man in these days that will expose himself for the worship & honour of his friend, or for the common wele? seld or never shall thou be founden. Also the Knights should large & liberal, for when a knight hath regard unto his singular profit by his covetise he dispoileth his people, for when the soldiers see that they put them in peril. This is a long chapter containing many other things appertaining to knighthood which (thanks to Don Quixote) every body knows. — It ends with the story of Lycurgus from Turgius (Trogus) Pompeius, & his 12 laws which are rehearsed, & how he exiled himself after making the people promise to keep his laws till he returned, which he never did & he is therefore called a noble Knight, having subjected him to privation for the good of his country.

Essay on the Heads of a Discourse of the origin of writing. By Joseph Ames, F. R. S. and Secretary to the Society of Antiquaries. London [in Ames' hand-writing.] A copy of the London Times Extraordinary No. 9170, Wednesday, March 16, 1814, announcing the defeat of Napoleon Bonaparte, is inserted at the end of vol. one.

Ames' very valuable work was published in 1749, 589 pp. 4°. The new edition by Herbert, appeared in 1785–1790, of which 50 copies on large paper and 500 on small paper were printed. It was intended that Dibdin's greatly enlarged edition should be in six volumes, but the enormous delay he permitted in bringing out each successive volume, led to lapse of interest and loss of patrons by death, removal, and other circumstances, and with the fourth volume the publication closed.

Typographical antiquities; or, An historical account of the origin and progress of printing in Great Britain and Ireland . . . Containing memoirs of our ancient printers, and a register of books printed by them, from the year MCCCCLXXI to MDC. Begun by the late Joseph Ames . . . Considerably augmented, both in the Memoirs and number of books, by William Herbert, of Cheshunt, Herts. London: Printed for the editor, and sold by Mr. T. Payne and son . . . MDCCXC.

4°. (31 x 25 cm.)

Volume 3 only of the large paper edition. It is lettered on the back, vol. 5, and uniformly bound with the Dibdin edition. It covers the period [1560–1600], which Dibdin failed to publish. The marginal notes, etc., are continued throughout the volume. There are numerous extra illustrations of title pages and printers' marks.

The five volumes form a complete work, and is indispensable to the collector of early English books. Later writers on the same subject are largely indebted to the successive authors of this work. Notwithstanding its errors, which are numerous, it is the most complete work of its kind.

Préface et explication des planches (Uniform with the volumes of plates; binder's title only) in one vol.

Carte topographique. Publiée par l'ordre du Gouvernement. [1828].

Also two volumes of plates of the size called Grand Aigle or Grand Monde with binder's title:

Antiquités: Planches, Tome, I, II, III, IV, V,;

État moderne: Planches, Tome, I, II.

"The engravings belonging to this work, amount to eight hundred and ninety-four separate plates, exclusive of thirty-six delivered with the text. The greater number of these are printed on the paper called Jésus, measuring 27 by 21 inches; but there are eighty-eight plates which measure 42½ inches by 27; and thirteen others, measuring 50 inches by 27½; the former of which are called Grand-format, Planches moyenne, or intermediate Grand-format, and the latter Grand Monde. All these illustrations, says Brunet, are usually bound in nine volumes, of the size called Jésus; and in the three others of the size called Grand Aigle or Grand Monde; the whole collection being divided into the same classes as the text."

This copy has been carefully examined and compared with the collation published by the London Institution, entitled: A bibliographical account and collation of La Description de l'Égypte, London, 1838, 76 pp. It is complete, and with the exception of the arrangement of the plates is identical.

"As the object of this extensive collection of materials was to produce the most copious and useful means of intimately studying the land of Egypt, rather than a costly and luxurious publication,—the contents of the Description de l'Égypte were carefully methodised by the accurate talents of M. Fourier; who in the elaborate Préface Historique which he attached to the large Explication des Planches, developed both the origin and progress of the work, and the plan upon which he had finally arranged it. It will be important to give a particular account of the system of classification adopted, as being the only means by which an acquaintance with the great variety of subjects comprised in the book may be easily attained. From the very first design of the collection, the text and plates of these volumes were intended to contain firstly, Descriptions, Mémoires, and Drawings, of Antiquities; secondly, a series of similar illustrations relating to Modern Egypt; thirdly, descriptions and figures of Zöological, Botanical, and Mineralogical productions; and, fourthly, Geographical and Topographical Charts. On the remaining plates were to be represented a variety of existing and interesting objects, which were too imperfect to be accurately delineated in a large and separate form. Pursuing these intentions, therefore, the system of arrangement adopted by Fourier, divided the whole contents of the book into three general classes: namely, I. Antiquités, II, État moderne, and III, Histoire naturelle."

Dickens, Charles, 1812-1870.

American notes for general circulation. By Charles Dickens. London: Chapman & Hall, 1842.

2 vols, 12°. (19 cm.) Full calf, gilt back and edges, inside border, by Hammond.

First edition. This work was first published in purple cloth, passed through no less than three editions before the close of the year.

The original edition was issued in two forms, owing to the elimination at the last moment of an introductory chapter which would have occupied pp. viii of preliminary matter. When this chapter was suppressed, the publishers forgot to alter the pagination, and consequently Vol. 1, of the earliest issue is paged up to xvi, although there are only viii pages of text. Later copies of the same edition have the necessary alteration, and thus there are what may be described as two separate issues, the first an accidental one.

The Battle of life. A love story. By Charles Dickens. London: Bradbury and Evans, 1846.

3 p. l., 175 pp., illustrations, frontispiece, 16°. (16½ cm.)
Illustrations by D. Maclise, R. Doyle, C. Stanfield, J. Leech.
Bound as the above, by Hammond.
This is a second issue.
"There were three separate and distinct issues of this edition, which can only be distinguished by reference to the engraved title. The first issue has merely the words 'A love Story.' In the second issue the same words are supported by a Cupid, and the third issue is often met with, the other two are more uncommon, especially the second."

Bleak House. By Charles Dickens. With illustrations by H. K. Browne. London: Bradbury and Evans, 1853.

xvi, 624 pp., 40 illustrations, 8°. (21 cm.) Bound as the above, by Hammond.
First edition. First published in 20 monthly parts in green covers, commencing March, 1852. The work was first published in volume form in green cloth.

A child's history of England. By Charles Dickens. With a frontispiece by F. W. Topham. London: Bradbury & Evans, 1860.

3 vols., sm., 4°. (15½ x 13½ cm.) Bound as the above, by Hammond.

The Chimes: a goblin story of some bells that rang an old year out and a new year in. By Charles Dickens. Ninth edition. London: Chapman and Hall, 1845.

3 p. l., 175 [1] pp., illustrations, 16°. (16½ cm.) Bound as the above, by Hammond.
Illustrations by D. Maclise, R. Doyle, J. Leech, C. Stanfield.

The Cricket on the hearth. A fairy tale of home. By Charles Dickens. Twentieth edition. London: Printed and published for the author, by Bradbury and Evans, 1846.

Hard times, for these times. By Charles Dickens. London: Bradbury & Evans, 1854.

viii, 352 pp., 12°. (17 cm.) Bound as the above, by Hammond.

First edition. This story first appeared in Household Words, and was published in volume form as above in green cloth. It contains an inscription to Thomas Carlyle, but no illustrations.

The Haunted man and the ghost's bargain. A fancy for Christmas time. By Charles Dickens. [Second issue.] London: Bradbury & Evans, 1848.

2 p. l., 188 pp., illustrations, 12°. (16½ cm.) Bound as the above, by Hammond.

Illustrations by J. Tenniel, C. Stanfield, F. Stone, J. Leech.

Another copy in half morocco, gilt back and top edges, marbled sides.

First published in red cloth, with frontispiece, engraved title, and 14 woodcuts as per list. There are two issues of this edition, the first being dated "MDCCCXLVIII" and the second "1848." The first is rarely met with, the probability being that only a very few copies were issued with the date in Roman letters.

Fine copy of this rare tract.

There were three editions of "Pappe" issued in the year 1589. In comparing the collation of Bond given in Vol. 3, pp. 389–390 of J. Lyly's Works, this copy is exactly as the Malone copy in the Bodleian with one exception, p. 407, l. 30, 'not' is 'nor' as in the British Museum copies.

It was afterwards reprinted, with introduction and notes by John Petheram, forming No. 3 of the series, Puritan Discipline Tracts, London, 1844, 12°.; Among Elizabethan and Jacobite pamphlets. (Pocket Library of English Literature, v. 4 pp. 43–83), with brief introduction and notes by G. F. Saintsbury. London: Precival & Co., 1892, 16°. See also Lyly, J. Complete works, . . . Edited by R. Warwick Bond, v. 3, pp. 388–413.

Dedicated "To the Father and the two Sonnes, Huffe, Ruffe, and Snuffe, the three tame ruffians of the Church, which take pepper in the nose, because they can not marre Prelate's grating." "To take pepper in the nose" signified to pocket an affront. The dedication is signed: "Yours at an houres warning Double V."

There are very curious allusions in this tract. On B3, recto, the author says: "Now you put me in minde of the matter, there is a booke coming out of a hundred merrie tales," and on C3 recto, he mentions "Stans puer ad mensam," "Aesop's fables," the lost school-book called "Pueriles," "A, B, C," the "Horne-booke," the games of Irish and Primero tobacco, besides several rare proverbs. At sig. D1 recto, the author says: "let me stroake my beard thrice like a Germain, before I speak a wise word." At sig. D2 verso, there is a singular passage: "Sed heus tu, dic sodes, will they not bee discouraged for the common players? Would those Comedies might be allowed to be plaid that are pend, and then I am sure he [Martin] would be decyphered, and so perhaps discouraged." A little further on there is a still more remarkable paragraph: "A stage plaier, though he bee but a cobler by occupation, yet his chance may bee to play the Kings part." On sig. E2, is a reference to "Dr. Bullen's dogge Spring."

price than their size or merit might be supposed to warrant." Subsequently a variety of similar verses occasionally turned up,—and it having been suggested that a new edition, containing the original text, which was in many instances inaccurate, enlarged by additional new matter, and accompanied by illustrative remarks and notes, might be acceptable to those persons who take an interest in the relics of olden times, as tending to throw some additional light upon the history of dissensions which, for upwards of a century, so seriously affected the tranquillity of Scotland, this present Book of Pasquils is offered to the Public."

A packet of pestilent pasquils. [A supplemental part to the "Book of Scotish Pasquils." Privately printed.] [Edinburgh: William Paterson, 1868.]

31 pp., 8°. Bound with the above.

"This consists of Lampoons, chiefly on the Rev. David Williamson, minister of St. Cuthbert's or West Kirk, Edinburgh, the uxurious clergyman who outstripped Henry viii. in the number of wives." A few copies were printed for preservation in the cabinets of such collectors as do not object to antiquated scandal, and hold the opinions that, as illustrative of the morals and manners of Edinburgh society of past times, these satires have some value."

Scotish ballads and songs, historical and traditionary. Edited by James Maidment. Edinburgh: William Paterson, 1868.

2 vols., 12°. (20 cm.) Full calf extra, gilt edges, inside border. Dedicated to the Right Hon. Edward, Earl of Derby, K. G.

"The present edition of the more ancient popular Ballads and Songs of the North will, it is hoped, be accepted as a suitable accompaniment to the works of Dunbar and Henryson. The Ballads and Songs contained in the present collection are limited to such as are purely historical, or are based on traditions from which they may be presumed to have had originally some foundation in fact."

"The earliest of the Mar-Prelate tracts. Scathing criticisms are here made on Bridges's literary incapacity: 'A man might almost run himselfe out of breath before he could come to a full point in many places in your booke.'" Dict. Nat. Biog., v. 6, p 321.

"This Epistle was the production of John Penry, assisted by Job Throckmorton: and that they made use of memoranda which Rev. John Udall, Preacher at Kingston, had made and which he had shewn in his study to the Vicar of that place, the Rev. Stephen Chatfield so far back as Michaelmas, 1587 . . . But Udall ever repudiated the mocking method of the presenting those facts which is adopted in the present text, p. 118.

This Epistle was secretly printed in the "Dutch Letter," p. 114, by Robert Waldegrave and John Penry in Mistress Crane's country house at East Molesey in Surrey about Michaelmas, 1588; and came forth into furtive circulation from hand to hand, in the first days of the following November: previous to which date, neither the name nor the conception of Martin Marprelate (or as it was often, afterwards, for brevity's sake, reduced to Martin), existed in English Literature."—See Introduction, by E. This is an extremely rare copy of the first edition of "Pierce Penilesse" known as the "semi-surreptitious" edition, published by Richard Jhones in the early part of the year 1592, without the authority of Nashe. The "Epistle of the author to the printer" was not published in this edition, but was issued in the two authorised editions later in the same year. The printer, however, supplied a note on leaf A2, which is missing in this copy, as follows:

"The Printer to the Gentlemen Readers:

GENTLEMEN: In the Authour's absence, I haue been bold to publish this pleasaunt, and wittie Discourse of Pierce Penilesse, his Supplication to the Diuell: which title, though it may seem strange and in it selfe somewhat preposterous, yet if you vouchsafe the Reading, you shall finde reason, as well for the Authours vncouth nomination, as for his vnwonted beginning without Epistle, Proeme, or Dedication: al which he hath inserted conceitedly in the matter; but Ile be no blab to tell you in what place. Bestow the looking, and I doubt not but you shall find Dedication, Epistle, & Proeme to your liking.

Yours bounden in affection: R. I."

"I trust it will be found that the present issue is worthy of a work which, with North's 'Plutarch' and Holinshed's 'Chronicle,' was the main source of Shakespeare's Plays. It had also, as early as 1580, been ransacked to furnish plots for the stage, and was used by almost all the great masters of the Elizabethan drama. Quite apart from this source of interest, the 'Palace of Pleasure' contains the first English translations from the Decameron, the Heptameron, from Bandello, Cinthio and Straparola, and thus forms a link between Italy and England. Indeed as the Italian novelle form part of that continuous stream of literary tradition and influence which is common to all the great nations of Europe, Painter's book may be termed a link connecting England with European literature. Such a book as this is surely one of the landmarks of English literature."—Joseph Jacobs' Preface to edition, London, 1890.

"With the exception of the plates, the chief interest in the Second edition, centres in the new Preface, which contains . . . an analysis of the character of the emotions which are generally felt by well-educated people respecting various forms of good architecture. These emotions Mr. Ruskin separates into four general heads: (1) Sentimental admiration. (2) Proud admiration. (3) Workmanly admiration. (4) Artistical and rational admiration, each 'head' being fully and elaborately defined in a separate paragraph." Plates. "After having served the purpose in illustrating the First edition; the whole of the fourteen plates etched by Mr. Ruskin were cancelled, and a new set (with the single exception of No. IX.) was etched by Mr. R. P. Cuff. For plate IX. ('Tracery from the Campanile of Giotto, at Florence') Mr. Ruskin made a fresh drawing, from which Mr. J. C. Armytage prepared the minutely finished engraving, which in the Second (and all subsequent) editions serves as Frontispiece."—Wise. Bibliography of Ruskin, v. 1, pp. 10, 11.

The Stones of Venice. By John Ruskin . . . With [fifty-three] illustrations drawn by the author. Second edition. London: Smith, Elder and Co., 1858-67.

"The Stones of Venice had, from beginning to end, no other aim than to show that the Gothic architecture of Venice had arisen out of, and indicated in all its features, a state of pure national faith, and of domestic virtue; and that its Renaissance architecture had arisen out of, and in all its features indicated a state of concealed national infidelity, and of domestic corruption."—From The Crown of Wild Olive, p. 65.

Schedel, Hartmann, 1440-1514.

[Chronicon Nurembergense. Printed by Koberger.] Nuremberg: 1493.

Folio. (45½ x 31½ cm.) Bound in dark brown morocco, ribbed back, antique finish, three gold lines are introduced and intermixed with blind tooling, gilt edges, by F. Bedford.

A very fine and perfect copy with all the blanks and "De Sarmacia regione Europe," in their places.

Dibdin describes this work as follows: "Editio Princeps. The course of our researches has at length brought us to this very extraordinary volume; which, notwithstanding that it is by no means rare, cannot fail to be always interesting to the lovers of ancient printing and ancient engraving. If Koberger had printed only this Chronicle, he would have done enough to place his name among the most distinguished of his typographical brethren; but he has other, and nearly equal claims to a very marked celebrity. Our object, however, is confined to the book before us. The engravings are upon wood, and are executed by Wolgemut and Pleydenwurff; the former of whom was the master of Albert Dürer. When the reader is informed that there are upwards of Two Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty impressions (many of them however repeated) of these wooden cuts, he has learnt enough to conceive (if not in possession of the volume) that such a chronicle must at least be a very amusing production.

And first, in regard to the Author of the Chronicle. Trithemius, who was a contemporary, tells us, in his De Scriptorib. Ecclesiast. 1494, fol. 139, rev., "that the author was Hartman Schedel of Nuremberg, a German physician; who compiled it from I. P. Bergomensis and other historiographers, adding a few things on his own authority." Vossius, Hist. Lat. 1651, 4°, p. 573, is of the same opinion; as quoted by Placcius and Clement. Lindenborg had also the same notion, on the exclusive authority of Trithemius. See Theatr. Anon. et Pseud. 1708, p. 272, No. 1073. Fabricius agrees with the preceding, in this conclusion. Bibl. Med. et Inf. Ætat. vol. iii, p. 568. Heumann, however, in his Schediasma de Anon. et Pseudon. pt. ii, ch. ii, xxxiv, p. 147, has well observed—that Schedel may be considered as the editor, rather than the author, of the Chronicle; having enriched it by his own and other additions. The second and third colophons do, in fact, denote that he was the collector and corrector, rather than the author, of the work. This is also observed by Clement, whose notice of the book is copious and interesting; yet the information, after all, is only an amplification of what was first advanced by Trithemius.

We proceed, in the second place, to describe the volume itself; and to avail ourselves of such aids as former descriptions may hold out; premising, however, that such descriptions are, in general, short, vague, or desultory. This work is printed upon an imperial folio paper, of a mellow pleasing tint; although the greater number of copies which I have seen, are of a tawny and dingy tint—arising, probably, from the little care that was formerly taken of them: since no ancient book of equal entertainment could have been introducd to the notice of children. The present copy, although perhaps matchless in regard to size and condition is of this description.

On the recto of the first leaf, having a very large capital initial, and being printed in large lower-case Gothic type, we read this prefix: Registrum huius operis libri cronicarum cũ figuris et ÿmagibus ab inicio mũdi. The reverse is blank. A table of contents, with capitals in colors, in 19 leaves, not numbered, succeeds. The recto of the ensuing leaf is numbered Foliũ 1. The numerals extend to fol. ccc; (the end of the volume) being, however, omitted, for six leaves after folio cclxvi. The leaf numbered cclxvii, ought to be cclxxiii, according to such intervening leaves; of which a blank leaf forms one.

These six leaves are, in the present copy, to be found in their proper places. (Leaves cclvii–cclxi are blank with the exception of the words "Sexta etas mūdi" at the top of the leaf.)

On the reverse of fol. ccc, is the third and concluding colophon.

From this it seems decisive, that Schreyer and Kamermaister were at the expense of the publication: that Koberger printed it; and that Wolgemut and Pleydenwurff (the former, Albert Dürer's master) designed and engraved the cuts. "For my part (says Hearne) the oftener I consult this chronicle, the more I wonder at the things in it, and I cannot but esteem the book as extremely pleasant, usefull, and curious, by reason of these very odd cuts, &c."—Robert of Gloucester, Vol. 1, p. xxiii. Some critics may conceive that I have given more consequence to this volume than it merits; but the work must unquestionably be considered as an unparallelled monument of the diligence, ingenuity, and public spirit, of the abovementioned citizens of Nuremberg, at the close of the xvth century."—(Dibdin, T. F. Bibliotheca Spenceriana, London, 1814, Vol. 3, pp. 255–280.)

The portrait of Thomas Scot, by Crispin. de pas, inserted. This is evidently a mistake of the binder who probably bound at the same time, this work and the works of Thomas Scot.

"Scot performed his task so thoroughly that his volume became an exhaustive encylopædia of contemporary beliefs about witchcraft, spirits, alchemy, magic, and legerdemain . . . King James, on his accession to the English throne ordered all copies of Scot's 'Discouerie' to be burnt (cf. Gisbert Voet, Selectarum Disputationum Theologicarum, Pars Tertia, Utrecht, 1659. p. 564.)

"More interesting is it to know that Shakespeare drew from his study of Scot's book hints for his picture of the witches in 'Macbeth,' and that Middleton in his play of the 'Witch,' was equally indebted to the same source."—Dictionary of National Biography, v. 51, p. 64.

Shakespeare, William.

Mr. William / Shakespeares / Comedies, / Histories, &/ Tragedies./Published according to the True Originall Copies./[Portrait by Martin Droeshout.] London: Printed by Isaac Iaggard, and Ed. Blount, 1623.

Folio. (33 x 21 cm.) A large, complete and entirely genuine copy. In the original binding, full calf, back has six bands, sides have two lines tooled in blind near the edge. The binding was broken at the juncture of the sides and back, and this has simply been mended, without any removal of the parts. The last leaf was torn, so that a few letters of the name of "Smithweeke" were deficient in the colophon, but have now been supplied.—These are absolutely the only two instances in which the volume can be said to vary from its wholly genuine character of individuality.

"William Johnstoune his Booke" is the inscription of ownership, on the top of the page of dedication, and was written, as well as a number of notes in the same hand which appear on the upper and lower margins throughout the volume, about the year 1625.—This is a copy of extraordinary value, such as I can never hope to see again; that is, entirely perfect and unsophisticated in its original condition. It has thus an infinite superiority over the very best of the fine and perfect copies hitherto known;—all of which were in modern bindings and had no doubt undergone the usual course of mixture of leaves and supplying of imperfections, which destroy the comfortable assurance of genuineness that we desiderate in all old books of more than ordinary value.—B. Quaritch.

Mr. Quaritch, in a letter of August 31, 1888, says:—"Your copy is the only First Folio Shakespeare of 1623 which I ever say in its original binding. From that point of view it may be called unique."

A copy with an original binding has since been found. It was the original Bodleian copy, evidently sold about Sept. 1663, or 1664, to make room for the new edition, 1663, which contained seven additional plays. It is known as the Turbutt copy, having been the property of that family for more than a century. It is now in the Bodleian Library of Oxford University.

On the inside cover are the bookplates of former owners: Willm. Cuninghame Esqr of Enterkine and Robert Mitchell Campbell of Auchmannoch, Avisyard & Glaisnock.

Mr. Sidney Lee, in his 'Census of Shakespeare First Folios,' published in 1902, placed this copy in Class II, or imperfect copies, in accordance with information supplied him at that time. It was incorrectly reported that the preliminary leaf headed 'A Catalogve of the seuerall Comedies, Histories, and Tragedies contained in this Volume' was missing. On examination later it was found to be in the seventh place instead of the ninth, as given in Mr. Lee's Collation. His attention being called to the error, he issued a notice in the London Athenæum of January 13, 1906, and again in the Library of April, 1906, p. 115, acknowledging the mistake.

Collation: Preliminary leaves:—First leaf, recto, blank; verso, 'To the Reader,' verses, ten lines, signed B. I. [for Ben Jonson].

Fine copy of the first edition.

Collation: Title within an ornamental border, 1 leaf, verso blank; The Epistle Dedicatorie to Sir Walter Raleigh, dated 'From my house of Kilcolman, the 27 of December, 1591,' 1 leaf; The poem, 16 leaves; Half-title: 'Astrophil. A Pastorall Elegie vpon the death of the most Noble and valorous Knight, Sir Philip Sidney. Dedicated To the most beautifull and vertuous Ladie, the Countesse of Essex,' 1 leaf, verso blank; The Elegie, 5 leaves.

"Spenser soon afterwards (1590–1) resumed residence at Kilcolman, and amid the sorrows of disillusion penned a charming account of his travels and court experiences, which he entitled "Colin Clouts come home againe." A vivid description, under disguised names, is given of the literary men and women whose sympathy he had won. Allusion is doubtless made to Shakespeare under the name of Aetion. Spenser sent the manuscript with a letter 'dated from my house of Kilcolman,' etc., to Ralegh, to whom he expressed indebtedness for 'singular favours and sundrie good turnes shewed' to him at his 'late being in England.' The poem was not printed till 1595."—Dictionary of National Biography, v. 53, p. 391.

Neuer before imprinted," Hh4–Ii3, pp. 353–363, verso printer's device, with date, "1609" and colophon: "At London/Printed by H. L. for Mathew Lownes."

"The third edition of the first three books of the "Faerie Queene," and the second edition of the fourth, fifth, and sixth books. It is the first folio edition and frequently occurs with other works of the author bound at the end. This undoubtedly arose from the circumstance of there being copies left in the hands of the publisher in 1611–12, when the collected edition . . . was printed, and the additional works were added to them, with the exception of "Prosopopoia, or Mother Hubbards Tale," which was not published in this form until 1613, and consequently too late to be included." The two cantos of "Mvtabilitie" first appeared in this edition.—Grolier Club. Catalogue.

SECOND EDITION

In the chapter on "The Laws of Angling," found in Part I. the fourth page (verso T8) is misprinted 276.

"This edition commemorates the first literary union of Walton with Cotton; for under cover of a special general title, "The Universal Angler," appears not only the fifth edition of Walton's "Compleat Angler," but a second part, written by Charles Cotton (the first edition), and in addition, "The Experienc'd Angler," by Col. Robert Venables, the fourth edition, much enlarged. "All which may be bound together, or sold each of them severally."

These five editions are all that were issued during the life of Walton, who died 15 Dec. 1683."—Grolier Club, Catalogue.
